

Evolution & Natural Selection

DOODLE NOTES

GENETIC Evolution

natural selection changes the range of traits in a population - there are 3 ways it can change. Let's look at a moth population that shows

An example of natural selection!

COOL! A population of light brown moths lives on a tree trunk. The hawk can't see them.

YUCK! A hawk catches a light brown moth. The hawk can see them.

NOOOOOO! A hawk catches a light brown moth. The hawk can see them.

YAY! A hawk catches a dark brown moth. The hawk can't see them.

YAY! A hawk catches a dark brown moth. The hawk can't see them.

YAY! A hawk catches a dark brown moth. The hawk can't see them.

YAY! A hawk catches a dark brown moth. The hawk can't see them.

Stabilizing

Stabilizing selection is a type of natural selection that favors the average phenotype and selects against extreme phenotypes. This results in a population that remains relatively stable over time.

GENE FLOW

What is it?

Gene flow is the movement of genes in or out of a population. It can happen through migration of individuals or the movement of gametes, such as pollen or sperm. This can bring new alleles into a population or change the frequency of existing alleles.

Example:

Gene flow is a type of microevolution that can occur between populations of the same species. It can happen through migration of individuals or the movement of gametes, such as pollen or sperm. This can bring new alleles into a population or change the frequency of existing alleles.

Evolution by natural selection

Describe the theory of natural selection and how Darwin's theory was first conceived (thought of).

An English naturalist named Charles Darwin went on a voyage around the world. He noticed that animals in similar environments had similar characteristics. For example, in the Galápagos Islands, Darwin observed similar but non-identical species of finches on each island. He noticed that their beaks seemed to be adapted to their food source. After some time thinking and the work of other scientists, Darwin developed his theory of natural selection.

Key points:

- Individuals in a population vary in their traits.
- Some of these traits are heritable (passed on to offspring).
- Individuals with traits that are better suited to their environment will survive and reproduce more successfully.
- Over time, the frequency of these traits will increase in the population.
