English 101 Introduction To Academic Writing:

English 101 University of Maryland Staff, 1999-08-01 English 101 University of Maryland & Coleman &, University of Maryland Staff, 1997-07-01 Academic and Professional Writing in an Age of Accountability Shirley Wilson Logan, Wayne H. Slater, 2018-12-27

What current theoretical frameworks inform academic and professional writing? What does research tell us about the effectiveness of academic and professional writing programs? What do we know about existing best practices? What are the current guidelines and procedures in evaluating a program's effectiveness? What are the possibilities in regard to future research and changes to best practices in these programs in an age of accountability? Editors Shirley Wilson Logan and Wayne H Slater bring together leading scholars in rhetoric and composition to consider the history, trends, and future of academic and professional writing in higher education through the lens of these five central questions. The first two essays in the book provide a history of the academic and professional writing program at the University of Maryland. Subsequent essays explore successes and challenges in the establishment and development of writing programs at four other major institutions, identify the features of language that facilitate academic and professional communication, look at the ways digital practices in academic and professional writing have shaped how writers compose and respond to texts, and examine the role of assessment in curriculum and pedagogy. An afterword by distinguished rhetoric and composition scholars Jessica Enoch and Scott Wible offers perspectives on the future of academic and professional writing. This collection takes stock of the historical, rhetorical, linguistic, digital, and evaluative aspects of the teaching of writing in higher education. Among the critical issues addressed are how university writing programs were first established and what early challenges they faced; where writing programs were housed and who administered them; how the language backgrounds of composition students inform the way writing is taught; the ways in which current writing technologies create new digital environments; and how student learning and programmatic outcomes should be assessed.

Decisions, Agency, and Advising Tanita Saenkhum, 2016-11-01

Decisions, Agency, and Advising considers the role of students' own agency in the placement of multilingual writers, including international students and US residents or citizens who are nonnative users of English in US college composition programs. Grounded in qualitative research and concerned equally with theory and practice, the book explores how multilingual students exercise agency in their placement decisions and how student agency can inform the overall programmatic placement of multilingual students into first-year composition courses. Tanita Saenkhum follows eleven multilingual students who made their decisions about placement into first-year composition courses during one academic year at a large public university. She identifies the need for the process of making placement decisions to be understood more clearly, describes how to use that knowledge to improve placement practices for these students, particularly in advising, and offers hands-on recommendations for writing programs. Decisions, Agency, and Advising is a significant contribution to the field and particularly valuable to writing program administrators, academic advisors, writing teachers, and researchers.

Literacy, Sexuality, Pedagogy Jonathan Alexander, 2008-03-15 Despite its centrality to much of contemporary personal and public discourse sexuality remains infrequently discussed in most composition courses and in our discipline at large Moreover its complicated relationship to discourse to the very languages we use to describe and define our worlds is woefully understudied in our discipline Discourse about sexuality and the discourse of sexuality surround us circulating in the news media on the Web in conversations and in the very languages we use to articulate our interactions with others and our understanding of ourselves It forms a core set of complex discourses through which we approach make sense of and construct a variety of meanings politics and identities In Literacy Sexuality Pedagogy Jonathan Alexander argues for the development of students sexual literacy Such a literacy is not just concerned with developing fluency with sexuality as a hot topic but with understanding the intimate interconnectedness of sexuality and literacy in Western culture Using the work of scholars in queer theory sexuality studies and the New Literacy Studies Alexander unpacks what he sees as a crucial if often overlooked dimension of literacy the fundamental ways in which sexuality has become a key component of contemporary literate practice of the stories we tell about ourselves our communities and our political investments Alexander then demonstrates through a series of composition exercises and writing assignments how we might develop students understanding of sexual literacy Examining discourses of gender heterosexuality and marriage allows students and instructors a critical opportunity to see how the languages we use to describe ourselves and our communities are saturated with ideologies of sexuality Understanding how sexuality is constructed and deployed as a way to make meaning in our culture gives us a critical tool both to understand some of the fundamental ways in which we know ourselves and to challenge some of the norms that govern our lives In the process we become more fluent with the stories that we tell about ourselves and discover how normative notions of sexuality enable and constrain narrations of identity culture and politics Such develops not only our understanding of sexuality but of literacy as we explore how sexuality is a vital if vexing part of the story of who we are
