On-the-go Text Entry James Clawson, 2012 To date hundreds of millions of mini QWERTY keyboard equipped devices miniaturized versions of a full desktop keyboard have been sold Accordingly a large percentage of text messages originate from fixed key mini QWERTY keyboard enabled mobile phones Over a series of three longitudinal studies I quantify how quickly and accurately individuals can input text on mini QWERTY keyboards I evaluate performance in ideal laboratory conditions as well as in a variety of mobile contexts My first study establishes baseline performance measures my second study investigates the impact of limited visibility on text input performance and my third study investigates the impact of mobility sitting standing and walking on text input performance After approximately five hours of practice participants achieved expertise typing almost 60 words per minute at almost 95% accuracy Upon completion of these studies I examine the types of errors that people make when typing on mini QWERTY keyboards Having discovered a common pattern in errors I develop and refine an algorithm to automatically detect and correct errors in mini QWERTY keyboard enabled text input I both validate the algorithm through the analysis of pre recorded typing data and then empirically evaluate the impacts of automatic error correction on live mini QWERTY keyboard text input Validating the algorithm over various datasets I demonstrate the potential to correct approximately 25% of the total errors and correct up to 3% of the total keystrokes Evaluating automatic error detection and correction on live typing results in successfully correcting 61% of the targeted errors committed by participants while increasing typing rates by almost two words per minute without introducing noticeable distraction      On the Application of Text Input Metrics to Handwritten Text Input ,2006
