Ethiopia's spatial and structural transformation: Public policy and drivers of change Schmidt, Emily, Dorosh, Paul A., Kedir Jemal, Mekamu, Smart, Jennifer, 2018-07-03 This paper evaluates Ethiopia s urbanization trend during the last four decades while also considering Ethiopia s structural transformation and recent public investments to promote greater industrialization within the country Ethiopia's urban population grew 4.2 percent per year between 1994 and 2015 far outpacing the overall population growth rate of 2.5 percent. Compared to the urban growth rate of Africa 3.5 percent per year Ethiopia experienced a 20 percent faster urban population growth rate. UNDESA 2015 Urbanization in Ethiopia is expected to reach 38 percent by 2050. However, this level is relatively low compared to the majority of sub-Saharan Africa (SSA) countries. Improved road infrastructure, rural to urban migration, and secondary city development is increasing urbanization within the country. In addition, recent public investments to promote industrialization and increase manufacturing labor opportunities via newly constructed and planned industrial parks are projected to increase urbanization and bolster structural transformation across the country. We evaluate these investments and demographic trends within the context of other countries in sub-Saharan Africa as well as with the experience of India and China. Ethiopia's investment in higher value manufacturing and service activities via economic zones may provide similar infrastructure to that of China and India's township and village enterprises (TVE). However, a focus on increasing human capacity and labor mobility will be necessary to ensure that rural farmers are able to take advantage of labor opportunities outside of the agriculture sector. We calculate the projected economic impact of Ethiopia's planned industrial zones and sugar factories and find that while public and private investment in industrial and agro-industrial parks may provide a catalyst for future growth, they are likely to provide only a small share of total output and employment. Investments in sugar factories are anticipated to total USD 5.2 billion with estimated production of USD 3.6 billion and value added of USD 3.3 billion. However, an increase in sugar output of this magnitude would imply massive sugar exports that may not be financially profitable.

China C. K. Leung, 1980 China's Urbanization and the World Economy Fan Zhang, 2014-04-25 Urbanization has become a new driving force in China's development. Through China's urbanization process, China's role in the world economy will change from the world's major workshop to one of the world's central markets. The increase in demand for The Great Urbanization Of China Ding Lu, 2011-10-18 As China rises to become the world's largest economy, half a billion rural villagers are expected to become urban residents in the coming decades. The great urbanization of the world's most populated country is sure to be one of the most far-reaching social economic events in the 21st century. This book provides a clear and comprehensive review of this unfolding event. It presents not only the evolution of public policies and institutional reforms regarding urban development over the past decades but also an up-to-date survey and in-depth analysis of contemporary social economic forces that define and contribute to the process of urbanization. Individuals interested in understanding China's urban development will find this book useful, informative, and fascinating. China's New Urbanization Strategy China Development Research Foundation, 2013 Urbanization is one of the major challenges facing China. Of China's 1.3 billion people, around half still live in rural areas. There has been huge migration from rural areas to cities in recent years, a trend that is likely to continue strong for some time. The strains that this vast migration puts on China's cities are enormous.

This book makes available for the English speaking reader the results of a large group of research projects undertaken by CDRF one of China's leading think tanks into the details of rural urban migration the resulting urban growth and the problems associated with all this The book goes on to put forward a new strategy which aims to ensure that China's urbanization proceeds in an orderly manner and that people and their needs are put at the centre of the strategy Key parts of the strategy include that city clusters should become the main form of urbanization that these should be arranged geographically in a pattern of two horizontal lines and three vertical lines that industrial and employment structures should highlight regional features and diversity that urban public services should be more equitably distributed that there should be new forms of urbanization management and city governance to accelerate urbanization and ensure harmonious social development and that the whole process should be conducted in an ecological green way Economic Report on Africa, 2015 China's New Urbanization Chuanglin Fang, Danlin Yu, 2016-02-25 This book answers the call for New Urbanization and proposes a 5 9 6 national spatial layout plan for the urbanization of the 770 major cities in China This macro pattern is based on a few major metropolises at the center and other cities supporting and benefitting from these metropolises to form a pyramid like urban hierarchical system The book also presents a comprehensive regionalization plan for China's New Urbanization and strategic approaches to improving the quality of this New Urbanization Currently China is aggressively promoting a so called New Urbanization which has been regarded as one of the primary ways to build a moderately prosperous society to address critical issues related to agriculture rural regions and farmers to expand domestic demand and promote industrial innovation and to realize the China Dream From a systematic perspective and using recently released urban data the authors analyze the current status of New Urbanization in China and also investigate the various potential problems and obstacles to its concrete implementation Based on the analyses and investigations the authors propose strategic directions paths and basic principles for China's New Urbanization In addition they clearly identify the three different modes of New Urbanization namely the general mode differentiated mode and gradual mode Today many scholars argue that China's urban regions are experiencing a highly unsustainable mode of development Chinese cities are heavily burdened by the so called urban diseases which are characterized e g by congested traffic polluted water and air and a lack of open and green spaces Traditional urbanization which primarily focuses on economic development must be fundamentally reformed New Urbanization which focuses on integrated economic development social integration and space environmental sustainability or simply put on the quality of urbanization has been called for to provide a potential cure for these urban diseases Due to the vastness of China's population and its rapidly growing economic political and cultural relationships with the rest of the world the book demonstrates that the success of this New Urbanization is critical not only to the future of urban China but also the future of urbanization worldwide The book offers a valuable reference work for all researchers graduate student and policy makers interested in China's urban development The State of Asian Cities ..., 2010

Urban Development in China under the Institution of Land Rights Jieming Zhu, 2019-09-17 How have the development and redevelopment of China's cities since the early 1950s transformed the settlements and fortunes of a fifth of the world's population? Rapid urbanization since the 1980s has changed the nation from a rural society to an urban one, marking it as one of the most significant transformations in history. As a country with severe land scarcity, land resources are intensively contested for during urbanization under the new regime of marketization. This book focuses on the impact of the institution of land rights that have transitioned from private ownership to socialist state ownership and subsequently to public land leasing in the urban domain and to collective ownership in rural areas. In the context of defining the relationship between the state and the market, the gradualist transition of land rights gives rise to intriguing processes of place making. The elaboration of these processes will engage several revealing conceptual notions: land as a means of production, land commodification, ambiguous land rights, incomplete land rights trading, land use rights for land development, rights institutional uncertainty, land rent seeking, and dissipating local developmental state danwei enterprises and more. The newly created landed interests are embedded intricately within the urban spatial structure. This book would especially be of interest to scholars interested in developmental economics, urban planning, geography, public policies, public management, and sociology, and also practitioners focusing on development and planning.

Urbanization, Regional Development and Governance in China Jianfa Shen, 2018-05-11 Rapid urbanization in China in recent decades and the challenges of social and regional integration and governance have been issues of major concern. This book explores the course of urbanization and development in China over recent decades. It considers a range of issues including urbanization, changing urban and regional systems, regional integration and governance. The book pays particular attention to the economic relations between Hong Kong and mainland China and how regional development, integration and governance unfold in the Hong Kong Pearl River Delta region.

Urbanization and Urban Governance in China Lin Ye, 2017-11-29 This book explores the process of urbanization and the profound challenges to China's urban governance. Economic productivity continues to rise with increasingly uneven distribution of prosperity and accumulation of wealth. The emergence of individual autonomy, including demands for more freedom and participation in the governing process, has asked for a change of the traditional top-down control system. The vertical devolution between the central and local states and horizontal competition among local governments produced an uneasy political dynamics in Chinese cities. Many existing publications analyze the urban transformation in China, but few focuses on the governance challenges. It is critical to investigate China's urbanization, paying special attention to its challenges to urban governance. This edited volume fills this gap by organizing ten chapters of distinctive urban development and governance issues.

The Way of Urbanizing China Shilin Liu, 2023-12-16 The book conducts a comprehensive research study on China's urbanization. It puts forward three theoretical development models of urban planning in China: i.e. the politics-oriented city, the economy-oriented city, and the human-oriented cultural city. It makes objective evaluations of the development models of the politics oriented city and the economy oriented city It suggests that relations between the government and the market should be straightened out to solve the hangovers of the development model of the politics oriented city and eco civilization development and cultural development should be put on the top of the government s agenda in order to cope with the recurring problems and complications brought about by the development model of the economy oriented city
