Competition and Cooperation James Alt, Margaret Levi, Elinor Ostrom, 1999-10-29 What can the disciplines of political science and economics learn from one another Political scientists have recently begun to adapt economic theories of exchange trade and competition to the study of legislatures parties and voting At the same time some of the most innovative and influential thinkers in economics have crossed the boundaries of their discipline to explore the classic questions of political science Competition and Cooperation features six of these path breaking scholars all winners of the Nobel Prize for Economics in a series of conversations with more than a dozen distinguished political scientists The discussions analyze adapt and extend the Nobelists seminal work showing how it has carried over into political science and paved the way for fruitful cooperation between the two disciplines The exchanges span all of the major conceptual legacies of the Nobel laureates Arrow's formalization of the problems of collective decisions Buchanan's work on constitutions and his critique of majority rule Becker's theory of competition among interest groups North's focus on insecure property rights and transaction costs Simon's concern with the limits to rationality and Selten's experimental work on strategic thinking and behavior As befits any genuine dialogue the traffic of ideas and experiences runs both ways The Nobel economists have had a profound impact upon political science but in addressing political questions they have also had to rethink many settled assumptions of economics The standard image of economic man as a hyper rational self interested creature acting by and for for himself bears only a passing resemblance to man as a political animal Several of the Nobelists featured in this volume have turned instead to the insights of cognitive science and institutional analysis to provide a more recognizable portrait of political life The reconsideration of rationality and the role of institutions in economics as in politics raises the possibility of a shared approach to individual choice and institutional behavior that gives glimmers of a new unity in the social sciences Competition and Cooperation demonstrates that the most important work in both economics and political science reflects a marriage of the two disciplines
