Bhatia, 2005 Biotechnology is a multi-disciplinary course having its foundations in many fields including biology, microbiology, biochemistry, molecular biology, genetics, chemistry, and chemical engineering. It has been considered as a series of enabling technologies involving the practical applications of organisms or their cellular components to manufacturing and service industries and environmental management. Initially, biotechnology was an art involved in the production of wines, beers, and cheese. Now it involves a series of advanced technologies spanning biology, chemistry, and process engineering. In recent years, innovations involving genetic engineering have had a major impact on biotechnology. Its applications are diverse, including the production of new drugs, transgenic organisms, and biological fuels, gene therapy, and cleaning up pollution. It is also about providing cleaning technology for a new millennium of providing means of waste disposal of dealing with environmental problems. It is in short one of the major technologies of the twenty-first century that will sustain growth and development in countries throughout the world for several decades to come. It will continue to improve the standard of our lives from the improved medical treatments through its effects on foods and food supply and to the environment. No aspect of our lives will be unaffected by biotechnology. This textbook on biotechnology has been written to provide an overview of many of the fundamental aspects that underpin all biotechnology and to provide examples of how these principles are put into operation. I.E. From the starting substrate or feed stock through the final product. The textbook also caters to the requirement of the syllabus prescribed by various Indian universities for undergraduate students pursuing biotechnology, applied microbiology, biochemistry, and biochemical engineering.
