Towards the Monitoring of Dumped Munitions Threat (MODUM) Jacek Bełdowski, Robert Been, Eyup Kuntay Turmus, 2017-09-18 This book describes the creation of a monitoring network which can provide information about the exact locations and the environmental threats posed by chemical weapons CW dumpsites in the Baltic Sea region using autonomous underwater vehicles AUVs and remotely operated underwater vehicles ROVs and utilising the existing research vessels of NATO partner institutions as launching platforms The dumping operations occurred shortly after World War II and included captured German munitions Operations with munitions from the Soviet occupation zone were performed by the Soviet Navy operations with munitions from British and American occupation zones were performed in areas outside of the Baltic Sea Skagerrak Strait the fate of munitions from the French occupation zone was never reported Due to difficult legal status of these munitions and high costs of remediation and retrieval removal of these weapons from the bottom of the Baltic Sea seems unlikely in the foreseeable future. These dumped chemical weapons pose an actual environmental and security hazard in the Baltic Sea Region. Nowadays with more and more industrial activities being performed in the Baltic Sea Area the threat level is rising. The AUV survey is based on the IVER2 platform by OceanServer equipped with Klein 3500 side scan sonar. The identification phase utilises several ROVs equipped with targeting sonars, acoustic cameras capable of penetrating turbid bottom waters up to 20m and visual HD cameras. A novel sediment sampling system based on a camera and sonar equipped cassette sampler has been developed to obtain surface sediments. The test phase described consists of a survey phase which will locate the actual objects concerned and a monitoring phase which will concentrate on the collection of environmental data close to the objects concerned.

Daniel A. Vallero, 2021-05-27 Environmental Systems Science: Theory and Practical Applications looks at pollution and environmental quality from a systems perspective. Credible human and ecological risk estimation and prediction methods are described including life cycle assessment, feasibility studies, pollution control, decision tools and approaches to determine adverse outcome pathways, fate and transport, sampling and analysis, and cost effectiveness. The book brings translational science to environmental quality, applying groundbreaking methodologies like informatics, data mining, and applications of secondary data systems. Multiple human and ecological variables are introduced and integrated to support calculations that aid environmental and public health decision making. The book bridges the perspectives of scientists, engineers, and other professionals working in numerous environmental and public health fields, addressing problems like toxic substances, deforestation, climate change, and loss of biological diversity, recommending sustainable solutions to these and other seemingly intractable environmental problems. The causal agents discussed include physical, chemical, and biological agents such as per and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS), SARS-CoV-2, the COVID-19 virus, and other emerging contaminants. Provides an optimistic and interdisciplinary approach underpinned by scientific first principles and theory to evaluate pollutant sources and sinks, applying biochemodynamic methods, measurements, and models. Deconstructs prior initiatives in environmental assessment and management using an interdisciplinary approach to evaluate what has worked and why. Lays out a holistic understanding of the real impact of human activities on the current state of pollution, linking the physical sciences and engineering with socioeconomic, cultural perspectives, and environmental justice. Takes a life cycle view of human and ecological systems from the molecular to the planetary scale, integrating theories and tools from various disciplines to assess the current and projected states of environmental quality. Explains the elements of risk, reliability, and resilience of built and natural systems, including discussions of toxicology, sustainability, and human-pollutant interactions based on spatial, biological, and human activity information, i.e. the exposome.

Small-scale Freshwater Toxicity Investigations Christian Blaise, Jean-François Férard, 2005-09-22 This broad review is the first to gather comprehensive information on the complete contemporary range of toxicity testing procedures and hazard assessment procedures which is normally scattered and difficult to find The two volume set provides a consistent template based approach linking relevant information on background theory and practice to each bioassay Volume 1 covers small scale toxicity test methods Includes extensive glossary
