

How does feminist criticism open up meaning in "Mrs Midas." Write an analysis of the poem including reference to the critical anthology to support your interpretation. "Mrs Midas" is a revisionism version from the female perspective of King Midas' story, an ancient Greek myth about a man who could turn everything to gold with a touch. This poem explores the sadness Mrs Midas feels in regards to not being able to feel the touch of her husband to the anguish, annoyance and disgust she has for him about his greediness. This poem is very interesting for feminist critics as there are both arguments for Mrs Midas being a strong willed person that does not let him ruin her life as she runs away and lives without him. However there is another reading that her husband controls her emotion and all she longs for is a loving husband. Right from the beginning the voice is of Mrs Midas who retells the story from her point of view. This would interest feminist critics as in literature women are sometimes voiceless or only heard behind the men however it is clear Mrs Midas has the control and is telling her story; through her humour and metaphor we are able to understand the breakdown of her marriage as well as the idea that "wealth isn't everything" in a different way that King Midas' story told this idea.

Secondly, it may be seen that Mrs Midas is challenging society's demand of "feminine behavior" as Simone de Beauvoir would put it as it she "poured a glass of wine this action shows a lack of interest in the idea that women are not meant to be drinkers. The way the poem is introduced so casually "it was late September. I'd just poured a glass of wine..." gives the impression that Mrs Midas is a woman who is not bound by traditional gender roles and is asserting her independence and agency. This is a significant departure from the traditional narrative of King Midas, where the woman is often portrayed as a passive victim of her husband's greed. The casual introduction of the poem suggests that Mrs Midas is a woman who is comfortable with her own choices and is not concerned with societal expectations.

The poem's use of metaphor and imagery further reinforces this idea of Mrs Midas as a woman who is challenging traditional gender roles. The metaphor of "gold" represents wealth and power, but also the loss of humanity and emotion. Mrs Midas's desire for her husband to "turn to gold" is a metaphorical expression of her desire for him to be more like her, more independent and more in control of his own destiny. The imagery of "gold" and "wealth" is used to contrast the materialistic values of King Midas with the emotional and human values of Mrs Midas. The poem's use of metaphor and imagery is a key element of its feminist critique, as it allows Mrs Midas to express her feelings and desires in a way that is both powerful and subtle.

The poem's structure and language also contribute to its feminist critique. The poem is written in a simple, conversational style that makes it easy to read and understand. This is a deliberate choice by the poet, as it allows Mrs Midas's voice to be heard clearly and without any unnecessary embellishment. The poem's structure is also simple, with a clear beginning, middle, and end. This structure is reminiscent of a traditional narrative, but the content of the poem subverts these expectations, creating a powerful and memorable critique of traditional gender roles.

The poem's use of a first-person narrative is another key element of its feminist critique. By using the first person, the poet allows Mrs Midas to tell her own story in her own words. This is a significant departure from the traditional narrative of King Midas, where the story is told from an external perspective. The first-person narrative allows Mrs Midas to express her feelings and desires in a way that is both personal and universal. It also allows the reader to see the world from Mrs Midas's perspective, which is a key element of feminist criticism. The poem's use of a first-person narrative is a powerful tool for its feminist critique, as it allows Mrs Midas to assert her independence and agency in a way that is both clear and compelling.

Conclusion

In conclusion, "Mrs Midas" is a powerful and memorable poem that offers a feminist critique of traditional gender roles and the value of wealth. The poem's use of metaphor and imagery, its simple and conversational style, and its first-person narrative all contribute to its effectiveness. Mrs Midas's story is a powerful reminder that women are not just passive victims of their husbands' actions, but active participants in their own lives. The poem's feminist critique is a key element of its power, as it allows Mrs Midas to assert her independence and agency in a way that is both clear and compelling. The poem's use of a first-person narrative is a powerful tool for its feminist critique, as it allows Mrs Midas to tell her own story in her own words. This is a significant departure from the traditional narrative of King Midas, where the story is told from an external perspective. The first-person narrative allows Mrs Midas to express her feelings and desires in a way that is both personal and universal. It also allows the reader to see the world from Mrs Midas's perspective, which is a key element of feminist criticism. The poem's use of a first-person narrative is a powerful tool for its feminist critique, as it allows Mrs Midas to assert her independence and agency in a way that is both clear and compelling.
