Beurteilung der klinischen Übertragbarkeit der Ergebnisse von Cobas e411 und IDS-iSYS zur Quantifizierung der Schilddrüsenperoxidase-Antikörper Paul Jakob Ruf, 2025 Evaluation of Capital Investments at Cliniq Corporation

Vy Nguyen, California State University San Marcos. College of Science and Mathematics, 2014 Management teams are frequently charged with making informed decisions for valid investments and cost saving ideas for laboratory instruments Cliniq Corporation is a research and manufacturing company that produces quality controls and calibrators for a number of in vitro diagnostic instruments The semester in residence project resulted in an organized investment evaluation procedure for management to consider all the relevant factors before committing to an instrument procurement decision Purchasing new equipment can extend the capabilities of the company into additional product lines and strategically target desired customers. It was important to establish an expert system to harvest the knowledge of senior management and to potentially improve on the current evaluation techniques. The research methodology included an evaluation of the current instruments in operation to set a baseline on the previous evaluations and to establish a quantitative ranking system. The sensitivity of the factors required the continuous fine tuning of the analysis tool. The result of the project was a five step evaluation tool with proof of concept pilot testing for the recommendation of instrument investment. The process began with setting constraints based on the needs and requirements that the company can commit to for asset acquisition. Secondly data was collected for the criteria of manufacturer type of analyzer first year introduced to market square footage routine maintenance assay menu capability test throughput ability of being an open channel instrument and continuous runs requirement for mainline water hookups and incremental training required for a routine operator. Then quantitative ranking values 1-10 were applied and compared against the constraints. Third was to calculate the total cost of ownership for qualified instruments. The fourth step was to consider the qualitative factors of instrument usability upholding company reputation customer satisfaction self imposed analyzers for strategic contractual purposes and product line expansion. The last step of the tool was to analyze all the factors involved for the recommendation of new instruments. The pilot testing proposed the purchase of a refurbished Roche cobas e411 Abbott Architect i1000sr or Siemens Advia Centaur CP to meet the company's objectives of maintaining quality products and boosting overall profitability.

P1-24-05 - Serum Vitamin-mineral Profiles U2013 Association with Breast Cancer Risk Including Dietary Patterns and Supplements Use: a Case-control Study Beata

Krusinska, 2017. Breast cancer is the most diagnosed cancer among women worldwide. Studies regarding diet and blood levels of vitamins and minerals in the breast cancer aetiology are limited and the results are inconclusive. We investigated the association between serum vitamin mineral profiles (VMPs) and breast cancer (BC) risk with including dietary patterns (DPs) and use of supplements. This case control study involved 420 women aged 40-79 years from north eastern Poland including 190 newly diagnosed breast cancer cases. The serum concentrations of vitamins folate, cobalamin, 25-OH vitamin D and minerals iron, calcium, magnesium were marked in 129 postmenopausal women, 82 controls, 47 cases using an immune analyser Cobas e411 and a Cobas Integra 400plus auto analyser Roche Diagnostics, respectively. A posteriori VMPs were derived with a Principal Component Analysis (PCA). Three PCA driven DPs: Non-Healthy, Prudent and Margarine and Sweetened Dairy were described previously. A logistic regression analysis was performed. The odds ratios (ORs) and 95% confidence interval (95% CI) were calculated. Two serum VMPs were identified. The 2018 Folate-Cobalamin-Vitamin D 2019 profile was loaded heavily by the folate factor (loading 0.82), cobalamin (0.81) and vitamin D (0.49). The 2018 Iron-Calcium 2019 profile was loaded heavily by the iron (0.81) and calcium (0.77). The 2018 Magnesium-Vitamin D 2019 profile was loaded heavily by the magnesium (0.92) and vitamin D (0.39). The risk of BC was lower by 88% (OR 0.12, 95% CI 0.02-0.88). p < 0.001.
