What Are The Objectives Of Industrial Attachment:

Education and Development, 1984 Assessment for Experiential Learning Cecilia Ka Yuk Chan, 2022-09-29 Chan's book explores the challenges in assessing experiential learning deepens our understanding and inspires readers to think critically about the purpose of assessment in experiential learning. Experiential learning has been studied and proven to be effective for student learning particularly for the development of holistic competencies i.e. 21st century skills soft skills transferable skills considered essential for individuals to succeed in the increasingly global and technology infused 21st century society. Universities around the world are now actively organising experiential learning activities or programmes for students to gain enriching and diversified learning experiences however the assessment of these programmes tends to be limited unclear and contested. Assessment plays a central role in education policies and students approach to learning. But do educators know how to assess less traditional learning such as service learning entrepreneurship cross discipline or cross cultural projects internships and student exchanges. While the current assessment landscape is replete with assessments that measure knowledge of core content areas such as mathematics law languages science and social studies there is a lack of assessments and research that focus on holistic competencies. How do we assess students ability to think critically problem solve adapt self manage and collaborate. Central to the discussion in this book is the reason students are assessed and how they should be assessed to bring out their best learning outcomes. Offering a collection of best assessment practice employed by teachers around the world this volume brings together both theoretical and empirical research that underpins assessment and perceptions of different stakeholders understanding of assessment in experiential learning from students teachers and policymakers. The idea of assessment literacy also plays an important role in experiential learning for example reflection is often used in assessing students in experiential learning but how reflection literate are educators are they aware of the ethical dilemmas that arise in assessing students. These questions are discussed in detail. The volume also introduces a quality assurance programme to recognise student development within experiential learning programmes. The book will be particularly informative to academic developers teachers students and community partners who struggle with the development and assessment for experiential learning those who plan to apply for funding in experiential learning and policymakers and senior managements seeking evidence and advice on fine tuning curricular assessment designs and quality assurance. Applied Learning in Higher Education: Sok Mui Lim, Yong Lim Foo, Han Tong Loh, Xudong Deng, 2020. Today all institutions of higher education almost everywhere in the world have been influenced by the concept of globalisation. The resulting policy changes in each nation state have of course reflected the degree of the impact of globalisation on the country.

hence the changes in higher education Banya 2005 p 147 This points to globalisation shaping knowledge production as well as the spread of intentional and continuous waves of innovation The effects of globalisation on education can be seen through a the changing paradigm from a closed system to a more open system and b the changing approach from a teacher centred learning environment to that of a learner centred environment This changing approach culminates in the broader ideas of applied learning through a a productive view of learning versus reproductive view of learning b constructivist versus behaviourist c learning facilitation versus teaching and d process based assessment versus outcome based assessment Rudic 2016 Bridging the Academia Industry Divide Wilson R. Nyemba, Charles Mbohwa, Keith F. Carter, 2021-05-12 This book is the result of years of research following a realization of the mismatch of engineering skills produced by universities and those that industry required based on the situation in Sub Saharan Africa equally applicable to other regions in Africa and indeed worldwide The book is meant to assist engineering academics and engineers in industry to build capacity and cope with the dynamic trends in technology brought on by the 4th Industrial Revolution and to prepare for the 5th Industrial Revolution an era predicted to be dominated by critical and system thinkers with creative and innovative skills as basic necessities The book is also useful for policy making researchers in academia industrial and public sector researchers and implementers in governments that provide required funding for the development of human resources and skills The book primarily consists of the novel research and innovation approaches of modelling and building systems thinking sub models which were ultimately integrated into the Universal Systems Thinking UST model aimed at improving the quality of engineers and engineering practice The initiatives in this book include strategies for bridging the gap between industry and academia through systems thinking research The book provides information on how to model simulate adjust and implement integrated systems thinking approaches to engineering education and training for capacity building and sustainability The book also covers approaches to address research gaps and mismatch of skills while capitalizing on the successes of several projects carried out and supported by the Royal Academy of Engineering over the years Manpower Journal ,1982

Batisai,2023-10-27 The book provides insights on decolonising media and communication studies education from diverse African scholars at different stages of their careers These academics located on the continent and in the diaspora share an interest in decolonising higher education broadly and media and communication studies teaching and learning in particular Although many African countries gained flag independence from different European colonial powers between the 1950s and the 1970s this book argues that former colonies remain ensnared in a colonial power matrix Many African universities did not jettison ways of teaching and learning established during colonialism and even those journalism communication and media studies training programmes which were established after the attainment of flag independence did not place decolonial agendas at the front and centre when setting them up Starting with big picture thematic questions around decolonisation the book goes on to consider what the implications of change would be for students and instructors before reflecting on how far it is possible to decolonise curricula and syllabi and what this might look like in practice across a range of subject areas and country contexts Overall this book presents a nuanced picture of what a decolonised media and communication studies education could look like in sub Saharan Africa This book is essential for researchers in Africa in disciplines such as media and communication studies journalism film studies cultural studies and higher education studies More broadly the concepts and ideas on decolonising teaching and learning discussed in the book are relevant to instructors in any discipline who are interested in doing the decolonial work of contesting coloniality Ghana International Monetary Fund.
