Wolfgang Iser The Act Of Reading:

The Act of Reading Wolfgang Iser,1978 By defining what happens during the act of reading that is how aesthetic experience is initiated develops and functions Iser s book provides the first systematic framework for assessing the communicatory function of a literary text within the context from which it arises It is an important work that will appeal to those interested in the reading process aesthetic theory literary criticism and basic theoretical aspects of the novel Book jacket

Reading Postcolonial Literature Hayley G. Toth,2025-03-10 An Open Access edition is available thanks to the kind sponsorship of the libraries participating in the Jisc Open Access Community Framework OpenUP initiative Debates about reading in postcolonial studies rarely discuss non professional readers except to secure the authority of professional reading practices In Reading Postcolonial Literature Hayley G Toth places non professional reading practices in dialogue with received academic wisdom to debunk common sense assumptions about non professional readers as Western or neocolonial consumers Drawing on reading practices recorded in academic books journal articles and on online book reviewing platforms like Amazon and Goodreads Toth draws attention to important continuities between professional and non professional practices of reading postcolonial literature At the same time she highlights that non professionals often have little desire to emulate the practices of professional postcolonial critics Precisely by not adopting the established protocols and methods of postcolonial studies non professional readers call attention to the limits of dominant approaches to reading in the discipline Across four chapters Toth examines the relationship between reading and identity during the Rushdie affair the difference between reading and address the challenges posed by difficult texts and the legitimacy of non understanding and the reception of popular texts primarily read by non professional audiences Reading Postcolonial Literature demonstrates that reception matters in any claims we make about the value of reading postcolonial literature and offers new ways forward for the practice study and teaching of reading in the discipline

Going Home Through Seven Paths to Nowhere Katalin G. Kállay,2003 This book is one of those rare combinations of intellectual brilliance stylistic clarity and sheer verve The book contains a series of major works of American short fiction by Edgar Allan Poe Nathaniel Hawthorne Herman Melville and Henry James as occasions for a mode of reading in which the readers aim is to establish an intimate relationship with the special arrangement of words in a text governed by a trust in a happy coincidence of moments in which one might recognize the words relevance to ones life Dr Kllay calls this a good encounter a term she adopts from the writings of philosopher Stanley Cavell In her detailed theoretical introduction Dr Kllay lays bare her scholarly debt primarily to the writings of Cavell himself and to the work of literary critic Wolfgang Iser as she further develops and clarifies the idea of the good encounter Here she identifies the good encounter with a particular trope which appears within the tales themselves and which also

The Deception of the Reader in "The French Lieutenant's Woman" by John Fowles Alexandra Baum,2014-12-18 Seminar paper from the year 2014 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 2 7 University of Freiburg Anglistik Amerikanistik language English abstract John Fowles is a postmodern writer who was born March 31 1926 in Leigh on Sea and who died in Lyme Regis England in 2005 He was greatly inspired by the works of the French existentialists Albert Camus and Jean Paul Sartre which is often mirrored in his narrations Fowles is one of the most well known authors of Postwar British Fiction and has published his famous book a pastiche of the Victorian novel The French Lieutenant's Woman which has won several awards in 1969 Due to its popularity the book has been made into a movie starring Meryl Streep and Jeremy Irons in 1981 The novel takes place in Lyme Regis England during the Victorian era in 1867 and is about the young gentleman Charles Smithson who already engaged to a successful haberdasher's daughter falls in love with Sarah Woodruff who is disdained by the society of Lyme Regis for her alleged affair with a French lieutenant John Fowles uses a postmodern narrator to tell a story that visibly has a very conventional Victorian framework This narrator presents the love story of Charles and Sarah through a mixture of plot and personal comments by playing with the features of postmodern literature in order to deceive the reader and to challenge him into finding his own reality in the narration The way the story is told shows a great interplay between the information the narrator gives to the reader and the information that is left out in order to mislead him This technique therefore raises the question of how the reader is to understand the wholeness of John Fowles's novel when he is deceived throughout its plot In this paper I am going to answer the question of how the reader is to understand the meaning of the book first by giving a brief overview on Wolfgang Iser's reader response theory and its importance in the reading experience of The French Lieutenant's Woman and second by analyzing the different appearances of the narrator by using postmodern features like the creation of suspense deception and illusion that Fowles used to manipulate the reader

Reading Fiction in Antebellum America James L. Machor,2011-04-01 James L Machor offers a sweeping exploration of how American fiction was received in both public and private spheres in the United States before the Civil War Machor takes four antebellum authors Edgar Allan Poe Herman Melville Catharine Sedgwick and Caroline Chesebro and analyzes how their works were published received and interpreted Drawing on discussions found in book reviews and in private letters and diaries Machor examines how middle class readers of the time engaged with contemporary fiction and how fiction reading evolved as an interpretative practice in nineteenth century America Through careful analysis Machor illuminates how the reading practices of nineteenth century Americans shaped not only the experiences of these writers at the time but also the way the writers were received in the twentieth century What Machor reveals is that these authors were received in ways strikingly different from how they are currently read thereby shedding significant light on their present status in the literary canon in comparison to their critical and popular positions in their own time Machor deftly combines response and reception criticism and theory with work in the history of reading to engage with groundbreaking scholarship in historical hermeneutics In so doing Machor takes us ever closer to understanding the particular and varying reading strategies of historical audiences and how they impacted authors' conceptions of their own readership

Wise King, Royal Fool Johnny Miles, 2004-04-01 This study focuses on a reading of Proverbs 1:9 as satire and argues that it alludes to two points of critique against Solomon: his political policy of socio-economic injustice and his numerous sexual indiscretions That Solomon abandoned his divinely proscribed duty only evinces his lack of fear of Yahweh First Solomon demonstrates his lack of discernment by an inability to rule with righteousness, justice and equity because of administrative policies that bled the innocent dry of their resources for his own self-aggrandizement Second Solomon's sexual behavior reflects his need of Wisdom as the personification of eroticism The absence of the fear of Yahweh in Solomon prompts the poet's reproof in Proverbs 1:9 that he should resume his proper role of Torah meditation How the son responds to the decision posed to him remains decidedly open-ended since satire generally offers no denouement to its plot Nevertheless the signs of this satiric poetry intimate the wise king as a royal fool

Acts of Reading Thomas Page Anderson, Ryan Netzley, 2010 Acts of Reading examines how John Foxe's Actes and Monuments shaped reading and interpretive practice in the early modern period and addresses the impact of recent electronic editions of Foxe's text on current reading practice and scholarship The collection draws on history of the book scholarship to make a plea for the centrality of Foxe to any discussion of Renaissance literary history These essays also productively attend to the relationship between the materiality of books and the conceptual assumptions that govern our engagement with them The anthology's focus on digital editions of Foxe's Book of Martyrs allows it to explore the often conflicted relationship between modern technologies of book production and reception and the early modern texts transmitted via these technologies More broadly Acts of Reading explores how books and our encounters with them through different media turn us into who we are Thomas Anderson is an Assistant Professor of English at Mississippi State University Ryan Netzley is an Assistant Professor of English at Southern Illinois University

Luis Goytisolo's Narrative and the Quest for Literary Autonomy Andrew M. Sobiesuo, 1997

American Bodies Tim Armstrong, 1996-12 Most human bodies have two arms, two legs, hands, feet, a head Yet the body as we perceive it is ultimately a cultural construct defined by the values and meanings each individual and each culture ascribes to it Beyond its corporeal realities the implications of the body how we adorn, alter, heal, and please it are potentially endless, limited only by the manner in which we frame it Revealing how the human body has served as a metaphor for social process, the anthology unveils the body as intrinsically configured by politics, gender, racial categories, fears of pollution, and commercial forces which exploit and regulate it Historical snapshots of American bodies over the past two and a half centuries, the essays in this volume cover such diverse subjects as sailor tattoos, maritime cannibalism in the early 1800s, birth control, rest cures for neurasthenia, and more recently, anorexia, boxing, cyberpunk, and plastic surgery

Drawing from history literary and cultural studies and film studies American Bodies is an eclectic stimulating collection that will challenge many fundamental beliefs about our physical form

Reading the Book of Himself Michael Patrick Gillespie, 1989 Reading the Book of Himself traces various social repertoires that inform the works of James Joyce and outlines the textual strategies employed by both author and reader in generating an interpretation Michael Gillespie examines selected works that formed a part of Joyce's intellectual background and specific writers who exemplify artistic or aesthetic standards that he wished to incorporate into his work Gillespie singles out major writers including Flaubert Balzac Conrad and Dickens whose technical proficiencies had a pronounced impact on Joyce's stylistic development and he considers the influence on Joyce of lesser known authors like Grant Allen and Charles Paul de Kock who worked in styles well known to popular readers He also notes Joyce's well documented concern for his personal and cultural past and its impact on his writing Having identified intra and extratextual elements Gillespie discusses reader responses and interpretations created by those factors

Readers and Mythic Signs Debra Modellmog, 1993 Some literary scholars view myth criticism as passe an approach to literature that enjoyed a heyday in the 1950s and 1960s before being replaced by approaches that are considered to be more theoretically sophisticated and satisfying such as feminism new historicism and deconstruction Modellmog argues that there are many good reasons not to cast out myth criticism from the community of critical approaches Most obvious among them is that myth has attracted many writers of this century from James Joyce to Thomas Pynchon Virginia Woolf to Flannery O'Connor Thomas Mann to Alain Robbe Grillet William Faulkner to Alberto Moravia and that to ignore myth is to dismiss an essential part of their work Modellmog suggests that by reconstruing the relationship between myth and literature we will find that mythic approaches are frequently not only necessary but also highly stimulating engaging readers in many varieties of questions quests and conclusions

Publisher description A Theory for Reading Dramatic Texts Catherine Arturi Parilla, 1995 This book posits a theory for reading dramatic texts It claims that the reading experience associated with narrative and poetry does not extend to drama reading drama is unique The event asks a reader to integrate two narratives dialogue and notes to engage in the ideation of sound action and space in an immediate present and to internalize a performance Based on a phenomenological understanding of the reading process and a reception approach to literature the book offers critical readings of Pirandello's Sei personaggi in cerca d'autore and Enrico IV and Garc a Lorca's Yerma and La casa de Bernarda Alba

A Dialogic Reading of The Steward Parable (Luke 16:1-9) C-S Abraham Cheong, 2001 C S Abraham Cheong explores different possibilities for the meaning of The Steward parable Luke 16 1 9 adopting a system of M Bakhtin's dialogic scheme a literary carnivalization Cheong breaks new ground by clearly demonstrating individual performance on the hermeneutic of the Gospel parables He characterizes the steward's debt reduction by a constant dialogue with other narrative features ancient repertoire and reader response now engaging scholarly interest In this way multiple voices of the steward s act are highlighted a movement to the lower realm provoking senses of redistribution relocation and reconciliation This book sharpens the understanding of The Steward parable in relation to other disciplines both in theory and practice The Western Humanities Review ,1980 Theories of Reading in Dialogue Thomas W.
