newborn health stands as a pivotal force in societal progress aligning with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) that aim to diminish maternal mortality, reduce morbidity, and eliminate preventable deaths among women and infants. Over the past few decades, this field has burgeoned into a critical area of study, garnering attention from various disciplines such as obstetrics, gynecology, midwifery, nursing, psychology, and psychiatry. Evidence-based practices have catalyzed improvements in various health domains, ranging from managing complex pregnancies to fostering natural labor progression, promoting breastfeeding, and nurturing early parenthood. In light of contemporary global challenges, environmental alterations emerge as predominant health concerns, significantly amplifying the vulnerability of women and infants. Issues like climate change, indoor and outdoor air pollution, and emerging environmental pollutants have spurred substantial attention towards the interaction between the environment and maternal/child health. Adverse environmental exposures may directly affect the health of mothers and children, perpetuating intergenerational consequences. A nuanced understanding of these effects and mechanisms is essential to safeguard maternal and child health.

Kangaroo Mother Care was created to help premature and low birth weight infants develop into healthy babies. Once the newborn baby's heart rate and feeding have been stabilised, it remains with its mother, who provides naturally all the benefits of incubator care. Babies are positioned in close skin-to-skin contact with their mother or even sometimes their father for twenty-four hours a day. The warm physical contact regulates the baby's body temperature so that the baby can continue to grow, stimulates breastfeeding, gives the baby a wonderful feeling of security, and strengthens bonding. The Kangaroo Mother Method is now used in thirty countries around the world, often in the Third World, where incubators are in short supply in maternity hospitals and has saved thousands of babies' lives. In the western world, it has been adapted and is used widely alongside incubator care to heal the sense of isolation and helplessness both parents and babies can feel in the tense initial weeks of the baby's life. Providing a history and a beautifully illustrated practical guide to kangaroo mothering, Nathalie Charpak's book tells you all you need to know about an approach that will change the way mothers relate to newborn babies and improve the way hospitals treat premature babies and their parents.
