Aguilar-Manjarrez, Shree S. Nath, 1998-01-01 Reprint First published in 1998 The present study is an update of an earlier assessment of warm water fish farming potential in Africa by Kapetsky 1994 The objective of this study was to assess locations and areal expanses that have potential for warm water and temperate water fish farming in continental Africa The study was based on previous estimates for Africa by the above author and on estimates of potential for warm water and temperate water fish farming in Latin America by Kapetsky and Nath 1997 However a number of refinements have been made The most important refinement was that new data allowed a sevenfold increase in resolution over that used in the previous Africa study and a twofold increase over that of Latin America i e to 3 arc minutes equivalent to 5 km x 5 km grids at the equator making the present results more usable in order to assess fish farming potential at the national level A geographical information system GIS was used to evaluate each grid cell on the basis of several land quality factors important for fish farm development and operation regardless of the fish species used Protected areas large inland water bodies and major cities were identified as constraint areas and were excluded from any fish farming development altogether Small scale fish farming potential was assessed on the basis of four factors water requirement from ponds due to evaporation and seepage soil and terrain suitability for pond construction based on a variety of soil attributes and slopes availability of livestock wastes and agricultural by products as feed inputs based on manure and crop potential and farm gate sales as a function of population density For commercial farming an urban market potential criterion was added based on population size of urban centres and travel time proximity Both small scale and commercial models were developed by weighting the above factors using a multi criteria decision making procedure A bioenergetics model was incorporated into the GIS to predict for the first time fish yields across Africa A gridded water temperature data set was used as input to a bioenergetics model to predict number of crops per year for the following three species Nile tilapia Oreochromis niloticus African catfish Clarias gariepinus and Common carp Cyprinus carpio Similar analytical approaches to those by Kapetsky and Nath 1997 were followed in the yield estimation However different specifications were used for small scale and commercial farming scenarios in order to reflect the types of culture practices found in Africa Moreover the fish growth simulation model documented in Kapetsky and Nath 1997 was refined to enable consideration of feed quality and high fish biomass in ponds The small scale and commercial models derived from the land quality evaluation were combined with the yield potential of each grid cell for each of the three fish species to show the coincidence of each land quality suitability class with a range of yield potentials Finally the land quality fish yield potential combinations were put together to show where the fish farming potential coincided for the three fish species

Decolonization Penelope Anthias, 2018-03-15 Penelope Anthias's Limits to Decolonization addresses one of the most important issues in contemporary indigenous politics: struggles for territory. Based on the experience of thirty-six Guaran communities in the Bolivian Chaco, Anthias reveals how two decades of indigenous mapping and land titling have failed to reverse a historical trajectory of indigenous dispossession in the Bolivian lowlands. Through an ethnographic account of the limits the Guaran have encountered over the course of their territorial claim from state boundaries to landowner opposition to hydrocarbon development, Anthias raises critical questions about the role of maps and land titles in indigenous struggles for self-determination. Anthias argues that these unresolved territorial claims are shaping the contours of an era of post-neoliberal politics in Bolivia. Limits to Decolonization reveals the surprising ways in which indigenous peoples are reframing their territorial projects in the context of this hydrocarbon state and drawing on their experiences of the limits of state recognition. The tensions of Bolivia's process of change are revealed as Limits to Decolonization rethinks current debates on cultural rights, resource politics, and Latin American leftist states. In sum, Anthias reveals the creative and pragmatic ways in which indigenous peoples contest and work within the limits of postcolonial rule in pursuit of their own visions of territorial autonomy.

Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer, 1897 African Research & Documentation, 1980 Library & Information Science Abstracts, 2008 Teacher in New Africa, 1970 Handbook of Research on Managing the Urban-Rural Divide Through an Inclusive Framework

Popoola, Ayobami Abayomi, Magidimisha-Chipungu, Hangwelani Hope, Chipungu, Lovemore, 2023-02-10 In recent years the growing disparities between rural and urban areas in developing countries have been a cause of major concern. The rural-urban gap remains the single most well-documented development and welfare disparity in the developing world. This gap can be seen in the low economic activities, higher poverty levels, and lower quality infrastructure and services in rural areas as opposed to urban areas. While the magnitude of this rural-urban divide is well-documented, very little has been documented about its impact on inclusive and sustainable urban development. The Handbook of Research on Managing the Urban Rural Divide Through an Inclusive Framework aims to capture the spatial and socio-economic divide between rural and urban areas and provides a road map to revamping the discussion that surrounds the urban-rural sphere. Covering key topics such as development, food security, and rural regions, this premier reference source is ideal for policymakers, government officials, industry professionals, researchers, academicians, practitioners, scholars, instructors, and students.
