Literacy as Translingual Practice Suresh Canagarajah, 2013-03-05. The term translingual highlights the reality that people always shuttle across languages, communicate in hybrid languages, and thus enjoy multilingual competence. In the context of migration, transnational economic and cultural relations, digital communication, and globalism, increasing contact is taking place between languages and communities. In these contact zones, new genres of writing and new textual conventions are emerging that go beyond traditional dichotomies that treat languages as separated from each other and texts and writers as determined by one language or the other. Pushing forward a translingual orientation to writing, one that is in tune with the new literacies and communicative practices flowing into writing classrooms and demanding new pedagogies and policies, this volume is structured around five concerns: refining the theoretical premises, learning from community practices, debating the role of code-meshed products, identifying new research directions, and developing sound pedagogical applications. These themes are explored by leading scholars from L1 and L2 composition, rhetoric, and applied linguistics, education theory, and classroom practice, and diverse ethnic rhetorics. Timely and much needed, Literacy as Translingual Practice is essential reading for students, researchers, and practitioners across these fields.

Envisioning Collaboration Geoffrey Cross, Charles Sides, 2017-03-02. The dissemination of desktop publishing and web authoring software has allowed nearly everyone in industrialized countries to combine verbal and visual symbols into text. Serious multimodal projects often demand extensive teamwork, especially in the workplace. But how can collaboration, engaging such different traditions of expression, be conducted effectively? To address this question, Envisioning

Collaboration traces the composing processes of expert graphic artists and writers preparing advertising campaigns to retain a vital national account. It examines the influences on individual and dyadic composing processes of what Csikszentmihalyi terms the domain in this case the disciplinary knowledge of advertising and the field in this case the surrounding economic conditions and client vendor customer and agency executive gatekeepers. Based on a 460 hour participant observation and intensive computerized data analysis, Envisioning Collaboration is the first book to meticulously examine collaborative creative processes at an award winning advertising agency including audience analysis, branding, collaborative moves, power and conflict management, uses of humor, degree of mindfulness and effectiveness. The findings indicate the role of concepts in generating common texts by artists and writers, the role of the visual in individuals composing verbal visual rhetorical elements in processes and products, and which verbal visual techniques were most generative. Findings are related to pertinent research in technical and business writing rhetoric and composition and some key research in visual design communication, advertising, neurolinguistics, management and psychology. The book concludes with a pedagogical training unit incorporating gateway activities for effective verbal visual composition and collaboration.
