Discourse in Organizations and Workplaces

Britt-Louise Gunnarsson

This chapter focuses on discourse in organizations and workplaces and will discuss a number of studies which explore the complexity and diversity of communication in modern working life. With a theoretical orientation towards sociology, organization/network theory and social constructivism, researchers have sketched the macro-frames which influence discourse at various levels within organizations. Studies of the correspondence between organizational structure and discourse will be used as a background for presentations of analyses which try to grasp and understand communication in the modern organization from different viewpoints and with a focus on different problem areas. The theoretical and methodological perspectives of these analyses include textlinguistics, ethnography, critical discourse analysis, interactional sociolinguistics and conversation analysis.

A relevant question for our understanding of modern working life is related to the effects of technological advance and globalization. The conditions for professional discourse have been influenced by a series of changes taking place in recent decades. Technological advances have facilitated a globalization of working life, while lifelong learning, flexibility, mobility and diversity have come to be key values in the global economy. In organizations throughout the world, we find a widespread use of technology and increased reliance on the internet for internal and external communication. Another striking feature, made possible of course by the technological advances, is the globalization of the business world and the job market. Throughout the world, we find transnational companies which use English as their corporate language and employ multilingual people who can move between jobs, between branches and between countries. The workforce mobility and workplace diversity which characterize a globalized economy also raise issues of multilingualism and multiculturalism to the surface, both in relation to the organization as a whole and to workplace practices. For employees this new situation has come to entail different and higher demands for literacy and communicative skills.

The purpose of this chapter is to deepen our understanding of the discourse-related problems facing managers and employees in the globalized economy. In the various sections of the chapter I discuss these problems from different viewpoints. First, I explore the correspondence between organizational structure and discourse at a more general level, where I use examples from analysis of small and interviews with IT professionals from Switzerland the UK and the US and centres on agile working whose focus on regular open communication and reduced hierarchies offer opportunities to explore tensions between different gender

Writing Workplace Cultures Jim Henry, 2000 In Writing Workplace Cultures An Archaeology of Professional Writing Jim Henry analyzes eighty three workplace writing ethnographies composed over seven years in a variety of organizations He views the findings as so many shards in an archaeology on professional writing at the beginning of the twenty first century These ethnographies were composed by either practicing or aspiring writers participating in a Master s program in professional writing and editing Henry solicited the writers participation in informed intersubjective research focused on issues and questions of their own determination Most writers studied their own workplace composing auto ethnographies that problematize these workplaces local cultures even as they depict writing practices within them Henry establishes links between current professional writing practices and composition instruction as both were shaped by national economic development and local postsecondary reorganization throughout the twentieth century He insists that if we accept basic principles of social constructionism the text demonstrates ways in which writers write workplace cultures to produce goods and services whose effects go far beyond the immediate needs of its clients

Humour, Work and Organization Robert Westwood, Carl Rhodes, 2013-02-01 Accessible and amusing in style Humour

Work and Organization explores the critical subversive and ambivalent character of humour work and comedy as it relates to organizations and organized work. It examines the various individual, organizational, social and cultural means through which humour is represented, deployed, developed, used and understood. Considering the relationship between humour and organization in a nuanced and radical way, and this book takes the view that humour and comedy are pervasive and highly meaningful aspects of human experience. The richness and complexity of this relationship is examined across three related domains: how humour is constructed, enacted and responded to in organizational settings; how organizations and work are represented comedically in various types of popular culture media; how humour is used in organizations where there is a more explicit relationship between the comedic and work. An exciting and controversial text, Humour Work and Organization will appeal to students of all levels as well as anyone interested in the full complexities of human interactions in the workplace.

Paradigms and Political Discourse Jane Jensen, 1989

Pragmatics, 2006

Communicating in Organizations Gerald Lee Pepper, 1995. This text is designed for advanced courses in organizational communication, exploring provocative issues in depth from ethical dilemmas.

The Discourse of Negotiation A. Firth, 1995. This text is about how people in workplaces act in concert in attempts to decide upon agreeable courses of action. Such acts are glossed as negotiation. Negotiations are not solely the domain of business leaders, politicians and diplomats; they are activities that permeate and uphold our daily lives. Working lives included. This text takes the position that negotiation implies collective decision making and in this sense almost anything is potentially negotiable, including obligations, information, decisions, services, status, territory and public image. Negotiation requires complex interaction with one's fellow actors and the pursuance of potentially conflicting goals. Thus, virtually all human activity provides a setting for the delicate process of negotiation. The question this book seeks to answer is: how are negotiations undertaken as discourse activities? The text provides detailed descriptions of the manifold instances of negotiation that occur in the modern workplace. It shows how discourse and context mutually configure and how people as advertising agents, exporters, lawyers, travel agents, doctors and bureaucrats carry out the work tasks they are paid to do.

Critical Perspectives on Organization and Management Theory Linda Mary Smircich, Marta B. Calás, 1995. The authors of the essays included here represent a diversity of views: neomarxist, labour process, symbolic feminist.

Knowledge, Power and Learning Carrie Paechter, 2001-03-19. New technologies are altering the relationship between knowledge, power and learning. The explosion of information resulting from the proliferation of Internet use has led to new questions about the nature of knowledge and how it is legitimated. At the same time, the new emphasis on learning as a lifelong process is changing relationships between teachers and learners and focusing on the multiplicity of sites in which learning can take place This book considers the influence of the information age on the changing relationship between power and knowledge and how this affects learning in a wide range of situations from the school to the learning organization and from the musical conservatoire to the high tech workplace
