Syllabus in the Philosophy of Education William Heard Kilpatrick,1922 Philosophy. Education ,1903 From My Writings and My Evenings Dagobert D. Runes,2022-02-22 A scholar embarks on a journey into the philosophical issues that concern him most in this profound and deeply personal essay collection It is late in the evening and a philosopher wants to get words on paper No grand project or treatise just an attempt to get some things off his chest Certain phrases become touchstones for his thoughts the nature of man the art of living God and religion Jews and anti Semitism crime and punishment arts and science language and literature history and the state education and thinking itself Believing that hesitancy in judgment is the true mark of the thinker Dagobert D Runes interrogates each of these themes as he wrestles with the question If you hesitate in your judgments how can you arrive at certainty The result is a touching document of a philosopher who investigates many areas of man s endeavors and who seeks to characterize what he judges to be the pure true nature of these realms

Thoughts on the Origins of Life R. B. Raikow,2022-08-02 Essays are a means of putting one s thoughts on paper So this book reflects that now my thoughts though still steeped deeply in science tend mostly to religion In the title essay trying to make a case for the creation of the human soul I felt it necessary to show my background knowledge of the relevant science The same logic applies to the short essay on water but I get more philosophical in the third essay about the difference between humans and other animals My philosophy becomes more personal in the two essays on theological virtues and birth control I hesitate to call the final item in this collection an essay because it is largely a quote of my father s diary However I include it because of its relevance to current huge world problems with refugees and totalitarianism Radmila Boruvka Raikow was born in Prague Her mother was still postpartum in a hospital when the Nazi s marched into that grand old city After the war her family managed to escape from Soviet occupied Czechoslovakia and migrated to the USA There thanks to her family s support she received a good education crowned with a PhD in genetics from UC Berkeley and married a native born American a fellow student of science with whom she had two children She spent twenty five years in biological research and in retirement has turned to popular writing Her three publications Heterosis Where Is My Home and Mind Control are short novels This is her first non fiction book

Education and Philosophy Through the Eyes of the Young Ones Ngogi Emmanuel Mahaye,2018-04-25 The idea of encouraging young writers to engage with issues and with concepts far removed from what one would normally expect them to confront at their age is highly commendable As an English language editor I encountered some difficulty in understanding the intention of some of the writing and obviously until this is clearly understood one cannot begin to tailor the language to provide for a suitable English language expression of this intention My attempt was not to impose content on the writing but to offer suggestions to make the material readable for the average English language reader Of course There is no such creature as an average English language reader so I attempted to infer the likely readership from the writing itself What this revealed is that the writing quality varies from Junior High School level in writing such as They say we live in the world of truth At the same time they say truth is what hurts yes Philosophy is the truth of life but to me my truth is myself because I believe in from the quote No one knows me better than myself To post doctoral level in writing such as The lyrics of the African Renaissance perforate the black porosities and become filtrate for the glomerulus of youth to mentally excrete inferiority complexes that tarnished their native inherent dignity Cause, Mind, and Reality J. Heil, 2013-11-11 T is said that there is no progress in philosophy The illusion of standing I still however arises only when we lose sight of our history and so fail to notice the distance we have travelled Philosophers nowadays find obvious ideas and themes that as it happens emerged slowly and painfully and largely in reaction to prevailing sensibilities The essays here honour a man to whom present day philosophy owes much Charles Burton Martin In reflecting on my own on going and somewhat chaotic philosophical education I find considerable evidence of Charlie Martin s influence After departing graduate school one of the first papers I succeeded in publishing consisted of an attack on Martin and Deutscher s Remembering After that Charlie more or less vanished from my conscious awareness until the winter of 1985 when we appeared together in a colloquium at the Eastern Division meetings of the American Philosophical Association Although Charlie was nominally a commentator on a paper I was delivering his comments contained more philosophy and went considerably beyond the tentative and highly circumscribed thesis I had elected to defend Whereas my focus had been on a tiny feature of Hilary Putnam s argument against realism Charlie went straight for the jugular addressing matters that immediately took us into deep water
