Adorno's Practical Philosophy

Fabian Freyenhagen,2013-07-25 Adorno notoriously asserted that there is no right life in our current social world This assertion has contributed to the widespread perception that his philosophy has no practical import or coherent ethics and he is often accused of being too negative Fabian Freyenhagen reconstructs and defends Adorno's practical philosophy in response to these charges He argues that Adorno's deep pessimism about the contemporary social world is coupled with a strong optimism about human potential and that this optimism explains his negative views about the social world and his demand that we resist and change it He shows that Adorno holds a substantive ethics albeit one that is minimalist and based on a pluralist conception of the good a guide for living less wrongly His incisive study does much to advance our understanding of Adorno and is also an important intervention into current debates in moral philosophy

Philosophy and Kafka Brendan Moran,Carlo

Salzani,2013-04-19 The relationship of philosophy with Kafka's oeuvre is complex. It has been argued that Kafka's novels and stories defy philosophic extrapolation; conversely, it has also been suggested that precisely the tendency of Kafka's writings to elude discursive solution is itself a philosophical tendency, one that is somehow contributing to a wiser relationship of human beings with language. These matters are the focus of the proposed volume on Philosophy and Kafka. The proposed collection brings together essays that interrogate the relationship of philosophy and Kafka and offer new and original interpretations. The volume obviously cannot claim completeness but it partially does justice to the multiplicity of philosophical issues and philosophical interpretations at stake. This variety informs the composition of the volume itself. A number of essays focus on specific philosophical commentaries on Kafka's work from Adorno's to Agamben's, from Arendt's to Benjamin's, from Deleuze and Guattari's to Derrida's. A number of essays consider the possible relevance of certain philosophical outlooks for examining Kafka's writings; here Kafka's name goes alongside those of Socrates, Kant, Kierkegaard, Nietzsche, Wittgenstein, Buber, Heidegger, Blanchot, and Levinas. Finally, a number of essays consider Kafka's writings in terms of a specific philosophical theme such as communication and subjectivity, language and meaning, knowledge and truth, the human/animal divide, justice and freedom. In all contributions to the volume, such themes, motifs, and interpretations arise. To varying degrees, all essays are concerned with the relationship of literature and philosophy and thus with the philosophical significance of Kafka's writings.

Reconciling Ancient and Modern Philosophies of History Aaron Turner,2020-10-26 The distinction between ancient and modern modes of historical thought is characterized by the growing complexity of the discipline of history in modernity. Consequently, the epistemological and methodological standard of ancient historiography is typically held as inferior against the modern ideal. This book serves to address this apparent deficit. Its scope is three-fold. Firstly, it aims at encountering ancient modes of historical and historiographical thought within the province of their own horizon. Secondly, this book considers the possibility of a dialogue between ancient and modern philosophies of history concerning the influence of ancient historical thought on the development of modern philosophy of history and the utility of modern philosophy of history in the interpretation of ancient historiography. Thirdly, this book explores the continuities and discontinuities in historical method and thought from antiquity to modernity. Ultimately, this volume demonstrates the necessity of re-evaluating our assumptions about the relation of ancient and modern historical thought and lays the groundwork for a more fruitful dialogue in the future.

Reification Timothy Bewes,2002-12-17 The concept of reification helps describe the effects of capitalism on the human world.

Adorno's Concept of Life Alastair Morgan,2007-10-15 An exciting new book examining the concept of life in Adorno's philosophy, relating this concept to a number of key thinkers in the history of continental philosophy including Marx, Hegel, Heidegger, Agamben.

Excluded Within Sina Kramer,2017 Why are some claims seen or heard as political claims while others are not? Why are some people not seen or heard as political agents? And how does their political unintelligibility shape political bodies and the terms of political agency from which they are excluded In this groundbreaking book Sina Kramer uses the framework of constitutive exclusion to describe the phenomenon of internal exclusion exclusions that occur within a political body More specifically constitutive exclusions occur when a system of thought or a political body defines itself by excluding some difference based on gender race class sexuality etc that is considered intolerable to the boundaries that comprise the body or system s political worth This exclusion is not absolute but preserves the very difference it seeks to repress in order to define itself against what it is not Yet as Kramer argues if those who are excluded contest their repression their political claims are deemed threatening and criminal But can we ever be without constitutive exclusions And can we avoid reinscribing them through critique Kramer ultimately argues that to do justice to the excluded to render those claims intelligible as political claims instead requires the reconstitution of the political body on new terms Importantly this book offers both a diagnosis and a critique of the concept of constitutive exclusion articulating what counts as a political action and who counts as a political agent Kramer takes up a range of cases including those of Antigone Claudette Colvin and Rosa Parks the 1992 Los Angeles riots and the Black Lives Matter movement to better understand who counts as a political actor and how we understand political belonging and the contestation of exclusion Excluded Within articulates who we are by virtue of who we exclude and what claims we cannot see hear or understand Theodor Adorno's Negative Dialectics and the Reconstruction of German Philosophy Eric Oberle,2005
