

Applying Scientific Methods

A college chemistry student is studying the properties of four unknown compounds, W, X, Y, and Z. She has been informed that one of them is ionic and that the other three are covalent. Of the latter, she has been told that the attractions between the formula units are dispersion forces in one case, hydrogen bonds in another, and covalent (network) bonds in another. She has been asked to determine the type of attractions for each substance. In an attempt to do so, she carries out experiments that reveal information about the substances' properties. Use this information to answer the questions that follow.

Property	Unknown W	Unknown X	Unknown Y	Unknown Z
Hardness of solid	soft	soft	brittle	brittle
Melting point (°C)	-10	-200	1500	3000
Boiling point (°C)	120	-150	2500	4500
Solubility in polar solvent	very soluble	insoluble	very soluble	insoluble
Solubility in nonpolar solvent	insoluble	very soluble	insoluble	insoluble
Conductivity of solid	nonconducting	nonconducting	nonconducting	nonconducting
Conductivity of liquid	nonconducting	nonconducting	conducting	nonconducting

- On the basis of the results of her hardness test, the student concludes that unknowns W and X are covalent substances, and that either Y or Z is the ionic substance. Comment on the soundness of her conclusion, given only the hardness information.

Classroom Assessment Peter W. Airasian, 2001 Airasian presents complex concepts clearly so that pre service teachers can understand them and solidly grounds these concepts in best practice through practical real well integrated examples He talks to not at users The text conceives of classroom assessment in a broader way than many other texts It focuses not only on the assessment needs of testing grading interpreting standardized tests and performance assessments but also on assessment concerns in organizing a classroom at the start of school planning and implementing instruction and strategies of teacher self reflection It views classroom assessment as an everyday ongoing integral part of teaching not something that is separated from life in classrooms The text is organized in a manner that follows the natural progression of teacher decision making from organizing the class as a learning community to planning and conducting instruction to the formal evaluation of learning and finally to grading
