Preventive Engagement Council On Foreign Relations:

Preventive Engagement Paul B. Stares, 2017-12-19 The United States faces an increasingly turbulent world The risk of violent conflict and other threats to international order presents a vexing dilemma should the United States remain the principal guarantor of global peace and security with all its considerable commitments and potential pitfalls not least new and costly military entanglements that over time diminish its capacity and commitment to play this vital role or alternatively should it pull back from the world in the interests of conserving U S power but at the possible cost of even greater threats emerging in the future Paul B Stares proposes an innovative and timely strategy preventive engagement to resolve America s predicament This approach entails pursuing three complementary courses of action promoting policies known to lessen the risk of violent conflict over the long term anticipating and averting those crises likely to lead to costly military commitments in the medium term and managing ongoing conflicts in the short term before they escalate further and exert pressure on the United States to intervene In each of these efforts forging preventive partnerships with a variety of international actors including the United Nations regional organizations nongovernmental organizations and the business community is essential The need to think and act ahead that lies at the heart of a preventive engagement strategy requires the United States to become less shortsighted and reactive Drawing on successful strategies in other areas Preventive Engagement provides a detailed and comprehensive blueprint for the United States to shape the future and reduce the potential dangers ahead

Annual Report of the Council on Foreign Relations Council on Foreign Relations, 1994 Palestine in EU and Russian Foreign Policy Malath Alagha, 2016-10-04 The establishment of a Palestinian state has long been a strategic objective of EU and Russian foreign policy in the Middle East However over a decade after the creation of the road map the establishment of an independent Palestinian state has still not been achieved Palestine in EU and Russian Foreign Policy uses the school of constructivism to provide a new understanding of EU and Russian foreign policy It explores the failure of these global actors to speed up the process of establishing a Palestinian state despite this being a strategic objective and top priority of their involvement in the Middle East peace process The book then analyses the role of identity and self other perception in the making of EU and Russian foreign policy towards the Middle East peace process It is argued that Palestinian statehood provides a telling empirical example of how and to what extent the search for global actorness as a matter of international identity informs foreign policy making by global actors The book then proceeds to discuss why the EU and Russia are so eager to be involved in initiating a peace settlement Offering a new understanding of foreign policy making by global players in Middle Eastern politics this book will appeal to students scholars and policymakers working in International Relations and
