Science and Technology in World History, Volume 4 David Deming, 2016-04-13 The history of science is a story of human discovery intertwined with religion philosophy economics and technology The fourth in a series this book covers the beginnings of the modern world when 16th century Europeans began to realize that their scientific achievements surpassed those of the Greeks and Romans Western Civilization organized itself around the idea that human technological and moral progress was achievable and desirable Science emerged in 17th century Europe as scholars subordinated reason to empiricism Inspired by the example of physics men like Robert Boyle began the process of changing alchemy into the exact science of chemistry During the 18th century European society became more secular and tolerant Philosophers and economists developed many of the ideas underpinning modern social theories and economic policies As the Industrial Revolution fundamentally transformed the world by increasing productivity people

The Patchwork of World History in Texas High Schools Stephen Jackson, 2022-11-30 This book traces the historical development of the World History course as it has been taught in high school classrooms in Texas a populous and nationally influential state over the last hundred years Arguing that the course is a result of a patchwork of competing groups and ideas that have intersected over the past century with each new framework patched over but never completely erased or replaced the author crucially examines themes of imperialism Eurocentrism and nationalism in both textbooks and the curriculum more broadly The first part of the book presents an overview of the World History course supported by numerical analysis of textbook content and public documents while the second focuses on the depiction of non Western peoples and persistent narratives of Eurocentrism and nationalism It ultimately offers that a more global accurate and balanced curriculum is possible despite the tension between the ideas of professional world historians who often de center the nation state in their quest for a truly global approach to the subject and the historical core rationale of state sponsored education in the United States to produce loyal citizens Offering a new conceptual understanding of how colonial themes in World History curriculum have been dealt with in the past and are now engaged with in contemporary times it provides essential context for scholars and educators with interests in the history of education curriculum studies and the teaching of World History in the United States World History: Patterns of Interaction McDougal-Littell Publishing Staff, 2004-03 World History in the Making

Andrew Wachtel, 2008 In the historical and literary imagination the Balkans loom large as a somewhat frightening but ill defined space Most attempts at definition focus on geography the actual mountain range that gives the area its name and the lands surrounding it or more recently on the set of prejudices attached to the term by local and outside observers There has been far less concern with attempting to define this space in positive terms taking as a starting point not geography as such but rather the cultural historical and social threads that could allow us to see what might be merely contiguous places as a coherent though complex whole The goal of this volume is to do precisely that The Balkans should probably be defined as that borderland geographical space in which four of the world's greatest civilizations have overlapped in a sustained and meaningful way to produce a complex dynamic sometimes combustible multi-layered local civilization. It is the space in which the cultures of ancient Greece and Rome of Byzantium of Ottoman Turkey and of Roman Catholic Europe met, clashed and sometimes combined. The history of the Balkans can be seen as a history of creative borrowing by local people of the various civilizations that have nominally conquered the region. Each civilization has thus been hybridized, modified and amplified by other voices and traditions.
