

The challenges faced by local governments in the mobilization of local revenue.

Just like the challenges met by a manager in the private sector managers in the local governments are faced with as many challenges in local resource mobilization and these are social issues, political instabilities, government interference, government policy, and cultural factors.

Government interference

Effective leadership that may enhance organizational performance as well as improving on the financial muscle of the local government, are sometimes frustrated by government interferences, in the day- today running of the organization. it is worth noting that governments most especially those in the underdeveloped countries interfere in the operation of local governments by ensuring that they influence either directly or indirectly the selection or appointment of managers of those local governments. For example - It is also very common to find governments to appoint its own to head a public sector depending on one's affiliation politically, an example CAOs,- chief administration officer, who are heads of government business at local governments, Whose daily running and management would be based upon competence but it is based on who "fought", this has led to incompetent and corrupt managers to always be appointed to head this organization without much progress.¹

Government policies;

Much as the manager may be so skilled, innovative, hardworking, vibrant and dynamic, these efforts may be washed the drain by unfriendly and prohibitive policies, which makes a good manager to cause poverty to the organization against his will and conscious. Policies such as those related to taxation regimes-such as pay as you earn-PAYE, and value added Tax-VAT which may hinder the managers effectiveness. in Uganda VAT stands at 16% this is not little money especially to start up business and hence very prohibitive. ² It should be noted that in the whole of Uganda everything sold or good produced must pay VAT, this weakens the resource mobilization and generation base of the managers in organizations because they cannot save as much for onward investment for extra income for the organization.

Natural calamities;

Just as we are discussing this paper today.(november,2009) el-Niño rains are ravaging the county side in Uganda it should be noted that more than 88% of the populace in Uganda depend on agriculture as their income source, hence
