Sylvia Charlesworth

Abraham Lincoln The Great Emancipator

On November 19, 1863, Abraham Lincoln spoke at the dedication of the national cemetery at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. The Battle of Gettysburg had turned the tide of the Civil War in favor of the North. There were almost 50,000 soldiers killed and wounded. Lincoln gave his famous and powerful speech and reminded Americans of all that had been done for the great cause of freedom and justice for all. He gave the address to begin "four years and seven months ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal." After speaking for almost two hours, he ended his speech with the words: "that we have highly resolved that these dead shall not have died in vain... and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

The Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., honors a man whose famous speech during the war over the Civil War gave power to the words we surely understand. Growing up, he was determined to achieve his goals in the future, he prepared and spoke up on his plans. Many call and say Lincoln has his remarkable strength and skill with an axe. He had a special sense of humor, but he was highly critical of himself. He worked long hours, well into the night, and he was highly organized and professional. He wanted to be a lawyer, but he was highly organized and professional. He wanted to be a lawyer, but he was highly organized and professional. He wanted to be a lawyer, but he was highly organized and professional.

In 1858, Lincoln decided to run against Stephen A. Douglas for the U.S. Senate seat in Illinois. The two men debated each other many times in the debates, and Lincoln won the election. As President, Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863, which freed the slaves in the South. He also signed the Civil War Amendments in 1865, which gave African Americans the right to vote and to be citizens.

Four days after the South General Robert E. Lee surrendered, Lincoln was watching a play in Ford's Theatre with his wife, Mary. On April 14, 1865, Lincoln was shot and died the next day.
