adaptations

BIRD BEAKS Name: _____

Adaptations are traits that help a species survive in their environment. Each of the three species described below live in a different environment, which means that they will each have different traits that help them. Read about each of the birds to learn about how their beaks are adapted for their habitats.

Robin
Robins forage (search) for small bugs in the water. They eat watery insects, flies, and worms. Sometimes they also eat small fish. They capture these creatures by conforming to something different in the water with their beaks. Unlike anything else, they come from inside to outside, they take a slightly open to capture any prey. Sometimes robins may also catch at the water or even change their heads under water to grab prey that is deeper below the surface.

Loon
Loons are carnivorous birds whose diet consists mostly of fish. Sometimes they eat tadpoles too. Unlike most birds, loons begin feeding above the water and then grab the unsuspecting fish or tadpoles with their beaks (the sharp edges on their beak). When it's time to eat, the loon holds the prey with one of its beaks and uses the back of the lower jaw to tear the fish off the bone with its beak.

BIRD BEAKS Name: _____

Pelican
Pelicans have mostly on fish. To catch their prey, pelicans swing down on a half of feet from above. Their feet point upwards to help capture fish. Returning to the air, the pelican will shake the water out of their mouth before swallowing the fish.

Sparrow
Sparrows primarily eat small seeds and insects. Their beaks forage the seeds for their prey by tapping on the ground. Sparrows are not concerned to see or catch or catch anything, and they will often take advantage of a bird feeder where it's common.

Toucan
The toucan is a bird that primarily feeds on fruit. Their beaks are long and curved. They use their beaks to reach fruit on branches that would be out of their wings. The toucan's beak is also used to hold onto the fruit. It's thought that the toucan's large beak may also play a role in courtship or self defense.

Loon
The loon is an carnivorous bird who eats insects such as grasshoppers and worms. They have also been known to eat fish, frogs, eggs, and other small birds. The loon primarily uses its long beak to probe into the soil or mud for insects such as earthworms.

Diplomator
Diplomator's beak is used to catch insects, mollusks, and reptiles. To catch their prey, diplomator's beak sticks through water walls, looking for one with an open shell. When they spot one, the bird uses their beak to pry it open and use it to pierce the muscle that connects the shell. Some species of diplomator also smash the shell open before enjoying the inside.
