Abstract:

Universities bear the responsibility of delivering higher education and research work. To achieve this goal, well-facilitated libraries are required. In the present scenario, the daily work of people is becoming easier with the use of internet. Hence, libraries and their services also need to show their presence on the web. The websites of Universities of Nepal have been explored using a checklist prepared for the purpose, of finding the status of central library websites and their services available via websites. The result showed that there is no uniformity in managing information in websites and available IT facilities are not being used properly in such an important sector of education. Library professionals now should make an effort to maintain uniformity in library websites which is now as much essential as the uniformity of cataloguing and classification work of libraries.

Keywords: Academic libraries, Libraries - Web sites, Library services, Web sites - Design.

Introduction:

Libraries of universities are established to fulfill the information needs of undergraduate/ graduate/ postgraduate students, research scholars, faculty members and staff. Simultaneously, it can provide service to other institutions as well as the general public. Library services are no longer limited to face-to-face interactions with users to facilitate their needs. The invention of the internet and web technology has brought changes in various activities of libraries. It has changed the nature of library services, the way of accomplishing library housekeeping operations and even the means of communicating with the users (Afolabi & Abidoye 2011).

For libraries, the value of providing information is becoming more important than
