

On the Dynamic Relationship between U.S. Farm Income and Macroeconomic Variables

Jungho Baek and Won W. Koo

This study examines the short- and long-run effects of changes in macroeconomic variables—agricultural commodity prices, interest rates and exchange rates—on the U.S. farm income. For this purpose, we adopt an autoregressive distributed lag (ARDL) approach to cointegration with quarterly data for 1989–2008. Results show that the exchange rate plays a crucial role in determining the long-run behavior of U.S. farm income, but has little effect in the short-run. We also find that the commodity price and interest rate have been significant determinants of U.S. farm income in both the short- and long-run over the past two decades.

Key Words: autoregressive distributed lag model, commodity price, exchange rate, farm income, interest rate, long-run, short-run

U.S. net farm income has been fairly stable in the 1990s and early 2000s. Between 1991 and 2002, for example, the average annual net farm income in the U.S. was $48.3 billion (Figure 1). Since 2003, however, this income outlook has changed dramatically as the U.S. farm sector has witnessed a considerable surge of annual net farm income. Over the 2003–2007 period, for example, the average annual net farm income was $74.2 billion, an approximately 47% increase from the average of the 1991–2002 period. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) predicts that U.S. net farm income is to reach a record high of $95.7 billion in 2008, a 10.3% increase over 2007.

Koo is professor and director of Center for Agricultural Policy and Trade Studies, Department of Agribusiness and Applied Economics, North Dakota State University, Fargo, ND.

Macroeconomic variables (e.g., exchange rates and interest rates) have long been considered to be important factors affecting the U.S. farm economy. For example, a weakened U.S. dollar (or dollar depreciation) tends to increase U.S. agricultural exports through a decrease in U.S. agricultural prices, thereby enhancing U.S. farm income. Similarly, lower interest rates in the United States result in higher farm income as the decline in interest rates lowers production costs for farmers without necessarily compensating with a decrease in the price of their output. Hence, it is important to examine macro-agricultural sector linkages to better understand both the causes and the consequences of changes in U.S. farm income.

Many studies have been conducted to analyze the influences of macroeconomic variables on the U.S. agricultural sector (for example, Schuh, 1974; Chambers, 1981 and 1984; Bessler and Babula, 1987; Bradshaw and Orden, 1990; Orden, 2002; Baek and Koo, 2007 and 2008). For example, Chambers (1981) investigates the

A Study on Dynamic Relationship Between Macroeconomic Variables and Stock Markets in the United States, Germany, and Hong Kong Taibo Mu,2016 This empirical study investigates the relationship between selected macroeconomic variables and the stock markets in the US Germany and Hong Kong The seven chosen macroeconomic variables are interest rate inflation oil price unemployment rate industrial production index money supply and exchange rate In this study Pearson s correlation unit root tests Granger causality test Johansen cointegration test and regression model are used to identify how these macroeconomic variables impact on S P500 in the United States DAX 30 in Germany and Hang Seng Index in Hong Kong with the monthly series for a period of 18 years from July 1997 to July 2015 The empirical results show that there are short term causal relationships and long term equilibrium relationships between macroeconomic variables and the stock markets in these three countries

An Exploration of Dynamical Relationships Between Macroeconomic Variables and Stock Prices in Korea Jung Wan Lee,2018 This paper examines short run and long run dynamic relationships between selected macroeconomic variables and stock prices in the Korea Stock Exchange The data is restricted to the period for which monthly data are available from January 1986 to October 2016 370 observations retrieved from the Economic Statistics System database sponsored by the Bank of Korea The study employs unit root test cointegration test vector error correction estimates impulse response test and structural break test The results of the Johansen cointegration test indicate at least three cointegrating equations exist at the 0 05 level in the model confirming that there is a long run equilibrium relationship between stock prices and macroeconomic variables in Korea The results of vector error correction model VECM estimates indicate that money supply and short term interest rate are not related to stock prices in the short run However exchange rate is positively related to stock prices while the industrial production index and inflation are negatively related to stock prices in the short run Furthermore the VECM estimates indicate that the external shock such as regional and global financial crisis shocks neither affects changes in the endogenous variables nor causes instability in the cointegrating vector This study finds that the endogenous variables are determined by their own dynamics in the model

Yield Curve Dynamics and Spillovers in Central and Eastern European Countries Ms.Anita Tuladhar,Mr.Alexander W. Hoffmaister,Mr.Jorge Roldos,2010-02-01 This paper applies the models used to study yield curve dynamics and spillovers in the U S and other countries to Central and Eastern European countries CEE countries Using the Diebold Rudebusch and Aruoba 2006 dynamic version of the Nelson Siegel representation of the yield curve the paper finds that the two way relationship between macroeconomic and financial variables in the CEE countries is similar to the one in mature economies However inflation shocks have very little persistence in the CEE countries owing to the strong convergence trends in these countries which tend to re anchor expectations faster Increased convergence in policies and market integration over time are associated with a stronger correlation between the levels of the yield curves while the curves slopes are more driven by idiosyncratic factors Shifts in the euro yield curve are transmitted both to interest rates and inflation expectations in the CEE countries and transmission is stronger after 2004 Fintech Ecosystem-Transformation and Market Dynamics Ms.Veenu Joy
