Global Bioethics Henk ten Have, 2016-02-10. The panorama of bioethical problems is different today. Patients travel to Thailand for fast surgery; commercial surrogate mothers in India deliver babies to parents in rich countries; organs, body parts, and tissues are trafficked from East to Western Europe; physicians and nurses migrating from Africa to the U.S.; thousands of children or patients with malaria, tuberculosis, and AIDS are dying each day because they cannot afford effective drugs that are too expensive. Mainstream bioethics, as it has developed during the last 50 years in Western countries, is evolving into a broader approach that is relevant for people across the world and is focused on new global problems. This book provides an introduction into the new field of global bioethics. Addressing these problems requires a broader vision of bioethics that not only goes beyond the current emphasis on individual autonomy but that criticizes the social, economic, and political context that is producing the problems at the global level. This book argues that global bioethics is a necessity because the social, economic, and environmental effects of globalization require critical responses. Global bioethics is not a finished product that can simply be applied to solve global problems; but it is the ongoing result of interaction and exchange between local practices and global discourse. It combines recognition of differences and respect for cultural diversity with convergence towards common perspectives and shared values. The book examines the nature of global problems as well as the type of responses that are needed in order to exemplify the substance of global bioethics. It discusses the ethical frameworks that are available for global discourse and shows how these are transformed into global governance mechanisms and practices.

Master's Thesis from the year 2017 in the subject Business Economics, Business Management, Corporate Governance, grade 1.7. Cologne Business School. In language English, abstract. On the basis of a growing international interconnection that has led to an increasing number of culturally diverse teams, study, and working environments, as well as significant changes in the intercultural orientation aimed at adapting to the realities of a multicultural society, the object of this thesis is to expound the significance of intercultural competence in the field of higher education, to illustrate challenges stemming from an intercultural cooperation, and to cover feasible improvement opportunities of dealing with them. Higher Education Institutions belong to the external environment that plays a significant role in developing or at least promoting ways for intercultural competence. Recently, the role of higher education in this context has been explored in great detail. Based upon a solid theoretical literature review and an empirical research in form of a case study the research concluded that IC promoted at HEI has only a theoretical and initial impact on professional life To paraphrase it differently HEI has the function to lay the fundamental ground in learning to become intercultural competent and to develop this competence further onto a professional level However being intercultural competent means continuous learning as each and every intercultural situation differs from another Nevertheless there are certain instruments that facilitate the development of intercultural competence What does are and how one can make use of them is one of the topics dealt with in the present thesis
