

Discourse, Identity, and Global Citizenship

MICHAEL KARLBERG

The concept of global citizenship has entered into the lexicon of diverse movements for peace and justice over the past decade. But what does it mean to be a “global citizen?” And how does this concept advance the goals of such movements? The Greek and Latin roots of the term citizen denote an inhabitant of a city, or a community, who possessed certain rights and privileges associated with membership in that community. Of course, many categories of people did not possess the rights and privileges of citizenship in the communities of Greek and Roman antiquity. Nonetheless, the concept of citizenship was a democratic ideal that expanded the boundaries of self-determination beyond the sphere of autocratic rulers. This is the difference between a citizen and a subject: a citizen is a participant in self-governance whereas a subject is not.

Today, the boundaries of citizenship have been expanded beyond the city-as-community to the nation-state-as-community. Legally, the term citizenship now denotes a constitutionally defined relationship between an individual and a nation-state, in which the individual receives a guarantee of certain civic rights in exchange for certain civic duties and responsibilities.

What does it mean, then, when we speak of “global citizenship?” Although global citizenship is not yet an accepted legal construct, the term is becoming a significant discursive construct that can play an important role in the creation of a more peaceful and just global order.

Discourse theory posits that human cultures and human consciousness are shaped, in part, by the patterned ways we think and talk together. The premise is simple: the patterned ways that we collectively think and talk—our discourses—influence our perceptions, our motivations, our actions, and even our construction of social institutions. In this sense, discourses are like the productive scaffolding, or matrix, of human culture and consciousness. Discourses help to structure our mental and social realities.

If we grow up immersed in racist or sexist discourses, for example, we are likely to perceive the world in those ways, we are likely to act

The Global Citizenship Nexus Debra D. Chapman,Tania Ruiz-Chapman,Peter Eglin,2020 In the spirit of Ivan Illich s 1968 speech To hell with good intentions the book takes aim at a ubiquitous form of contemporary ideology namely the concept of global citizenship Its characteristic discourse can be found inhabiting a nexus of four complexes of ruling institutions namely universities with their international service learning the United Nations and allied international institutions bent on global citizenship education international non governmental organizations and foundations promoting social entrepreneurship and global corporations and their mouthpieces pitching corporate social responsibility and sustainable development The question is in the context of Northern or Western imperialism and US led neoliberal global corporate capitalism and the planetary Armageddon they are wringing what is the concept of global citizenship doing for these institutions The studies in the book put this question to each of these four institutional complexes from broadly political economic and post colonial premises focusing on the concept s discursive use against the background of the mounting production of the global non citizen as the global citizen s other Addressed to all users of the concept of global citizenship from university students and faculty in global studies to social entrepreneurs and United Nations bureaucrats the book s studies ultimately ask whether the idea helps or hinders the global quest for social and economic justice
