I was happy before I had kids and am happy now. However, the first year of motherhood was rough. I was only 27 and becoming a mom forced me to grow up. All of a sudden I had to become a lot less selfish and a lot more responsible, which is not easy in a culture that glorifies self-centeredness and irresponsibility.

I'm a better person for becoming a mom, even though it's not always happy.

If anything, I think what this maybe shows is that becoming a parent is not everything. I have a 4-year-old daughter, and probably made me less "happy" — there are more stressors, more conflict with my wife, more financial stress, more activities that would like her have to be deferred to the future. On the other hand, I love my daughter and wouldn't change things for anything, even if having her sometimes means less day-to-day "fun" or "enjoyment." Sometimes, things worth doing and having involve a lot of difficulty and effort. They don't make us "happy" necessarily, but that doesn't mean that we shouldn't undertake them.

I recently read Stephanie Coontz's "Till Children Do Us Part" (<http://www.nytimes.com/2009/02/05/opinion/05coontz.html>). She writes, "[D]oes the arrival of children doom couples to a less satisfying marriage? Not necessarily. Two researchers at the University of California at Berkeley, Philip and Carolyn Cohen, report in a forthcoming briefing paper for the Council on Contemporary Families that most studies finding a large drop in marital quality after childbirth do not consider the very different routes that couples travel toward parenthood. ... The Cohens found that the average drop in marital satisfaction was almost entirely accounted for by the couples who did not enjoy being parents, disagreed over it or were ambivalent about it. Couples who pleased or equally welcomed the occasion were likely to maintain or even increase their marital satisfaction when their children were born." The researchers
