

THE HISTORY OF Chatbots

1972

PARRY

Written by psychiatrist Kenneth Colby, this chatbot was intended to converse like a paranoid schizophrenic. Its underlying approach was more sophisticated than Eliza's.

1991

DR. SBAITSO

An AI speech synthesis program that conversed with the user like a psychologist, often asking "Why do you feel that way?"

In 1997, the first Loebner Prize competition, which awards prizes to the most human-like programs, is held. The competition uses a standard Turing test to rank entries.

2001

SMARTERCHILD

This chatbot was highly successful on global instant messaging and SMS platforms and was first launched on AOL Instant Messenger.

2010

SIRI

Apple launched the first intelligent personal assistant that talks to users who pose voice queries using natural language processing. Siri was subsequently followed by assistants from Google, Microsoft, and Amazon.

2017

WOEBOT

Therapy chatbot debuts. While not intended to replace in-person counseling, Woebot was shown in studies to achieve a significant reduction in depression among users.

1966

ELIZA

Created at MIT by Joseph Weizenbaum, the program sought to parody a psychotherapist interviewing a patient. It passed a Turing test, meaning that it fooled humans into thinking they were conversing with a person. The project is named after the fictional character Eliza Doolittle.

1981

JABBERWACKY

British programmer Rollo Carpenter created the first incarnation of this chatbot with a goal of creating artificial intelligence that could pass the Turing test.

1995

A.L.I.C.E.

(Artificial Linguistic Internet Computer Entity): Created by artificial intelligence pioneer Richard Wallace, this chatbot inspired Spike Jonze's 2013 film Her about a man who falls in love with a chatbot.

2006

IBM WATSON

This question-answering computer program was conceived to be able to compete against human champions on the television game show Jeopardy! using natural language. It has since become the core of a system that helps doctors diagnose lung cancer.

2016

BOTS FOR MESSENGER

Facebook Messenger has become the biggest platform for chatbots. Since launching in 2016, it now hosts more than 100,000 chatbots. By September 2017, platform had more than 1.3 billion monthly users.
