Moran,1990 Ppi Partnerships Versus Ppi Divorces in Developing Countries (or are We Switching from Pppi to Ppdi?) Antonio Estache,2005 Thirty years ago in 1974 Chile launched the first large scale privatization in a developing country About 15 years later Argentina provided a new model of global infrastructure management Since then a variety of public private partnerships in infrastructure have been adopted throughout the developing and transition world These experiences add up to a large and heterogeneous enough sample of experiences from which some fairly robust conclusions on who benefited from the reforms and who did not Because many of these experiences are also turning sour and the privatization fad of the 1990s seems to be turning into an antiprivatization fad it seems important to separate facts from emotions Estache argues that the wide differences in interpretations of the facts can be explained by wide differences in the assessment criteria used by analysts including the definition of the baseline data chosen to assess the incremental effect of reforms It is also driven by the sectors the regions and probably most important the actors on which the analysis tends to focus Once all these factors have been considered a relatively fair and quantitative assessment of the prospects of the public private relationship in infrastructure is possible This paper a product of the Office of the Vice President Infrastructure Network is part of a larger effort in the network to stimulate a debate on the effectiveness of infrastructure reforms World Bank web site
