Barlow,1989 Books in Print Supplement ,2002 The Property Tax in China Yilin Hou,Qiang Ren,Ping Zhang,2014-11-20 This monograph offers a detailed analysis of the creation pilot implementation and possible wide adoption of the real property tax at the local level in China Starting in 2003 as China s economy gradually recovered from the Asian financial crisis that started in 1998 the real property market entered a period of rapid expansion followed immediately by rampant speculation rising housing costs and official corruption Over the last ten years the price of real property in most cities has more than tripled especially in metropolitan areas In an effort to curb this the government has instituted a number of property market controls including property tax pilot programs in Shanghai and Chongqing While this is the latest of a number of fiscal reforms it is a very important one that carries with it the ability to change the landscape of public finance intergovernmental relations and local governance in China It represents a fundamental change in the provision of public services the relationship between local governments and tax payers and the status of localities in the government structure Taking a public choice perspective the authors argue that the local property tax should be used not solely as a means of controlling housing prices but should be fully employed as a fiscal and budgetary institution that will contribute to mitigating multifarious socio economic problems resulting from economic growth rapid urbanization and widening income disparity As this program is the first of its kind so this book is the first detailed study of property tax in China as such it will appeal to researchers of public finance and public policy It will also be of great interest to policymakers in China and in other countries that are considering adopting or reforming their versions of the local property tax It fills the gap in a growing body of literature about the inner workings of Chinese economics and policy
