Introduction

Database management systems (DBMS) are software systems that allow users to create, store, retrieve, and manage data. They provide a structured way to organize information and ensure its integrity and security.

- Primary Key: A unique identifier for each record in a table.
- Foreign Key: A field in one table that refers to the primary key of another table, establishing a relationship between them.

Database Design

The process of designing a database involves several steps:

- Requirements analysis: Identifying the data and relationships needed for the application.
- Conceptual design: Creating a high-level model of the data and relationships.
- Logical design: Translating the conceptual model into a specific database structure.
- Physical design: Optimizing the database structure for performance and storage.

Database Operations

The basic operations performed on a database are:

- CREATE: Used to create a new database or table.
- INSERT: Used to add new data to a table.
- UPDATE: Used to modify existing data in a table.
- DELETE: Used to remove data from a table.
