QUESTIONS

Are you able to describe, how these questions are asked?

- Why, according to you, are all things grouped together?
- Why are substances and mixtures classified together?

What Are Physical Properties?

Start with the title of the chapter before you start to read the chapter. You will find a few common properties.

A physical property is a characteristic that can be observed without changing the identity of the substance. Most of the properties of an object can only be observed. For example, you can observe an object's color, texture, shape, size, or weight. In general, the properties of an object are determined by the particles of the substance. The object consists of atoms.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be measured. These properties include density, hardness, magnetism, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties than a smaller amount of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small something is, it has the same physical property or always the same
