Fish Physiology: Homeostasis and Toxicology of Essential Metals, 2011-06-28 Homeostasis and Toxicology of Essential Metals synthesizes the explosion of new information on the molecular cellular and organismal handling of metals in fish in the past 15 years These elements are no longer viewed by fish physiologists as heavy metals that kill fish by suffocation but rather as interesting moieties that enter and leave fish by specific pathways which are subject to physiological regulation The metals featured in this volume are those about which there has been most public and scientific concern and therefore are those most widely studied by fish researchers Metals such as Cu Zn Fe Ni Co Se Mo and Cr are either proven to be or are strongly suspected to be essential in trace amounts yet are toxic in higher doses The companion volume Homeostasis and Toxicology of Non Essential Metals Volume 31B covers metals that have no known nutritive function in fish at present but which are toxic at fairly low levels such as Ag Al Cd Pb Hg As Sr and U In addition three chapters in Volumes 31A and 31B on Basic Principles Chapter 1 31A Field Studies and Ecological Integration Chapter 9 31A and Modeling the Physiology and Toxicology of Metals Chapter 9 31B act as integrative summaries and make these two volumes a vital set for readers All major essential metals of interest are covered in metal specific chapters Each metal specific chapter is written by fish physiologists toxicologists who are recognized authorities for that metal A common format is featured throughout this two volume edition

A Research Agenda for Transforming Separation Science National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Chemical Sciences and Technology, Committee on a Research Agenda for a New Era in Separation Science, 2019-10-30

Separation science plays a critical role in maintaining our standard of living and quality of life. Many industrial processes and general necessities such as chemicals, medicines, clean water, safe food, and energy sources rely on chemical separations. However, the process of chemical separations is often overlooked during product development, and this has led to inefficiency, unnecessary waste, and lack of consensus among chemists and engineers. A reevaluation of system design, establishment of standards, and an increased focus on the advancement of separation science are imperative in supporting increased efficiency, continued U.S. manufacturing competitiveness, and public welfare. A Research Agenda for Transforming Separation Science explores developments in the industry since the 1987 National Academies report Separation and Purification: Critical Needs and Opportunities. Many needs stated in the original report remain today, in addition to a variety of new challenges due to improved detection limits, advances in medicine, and a recent emphasis on sustainability and environmental stewardship. This report examines emerging chemical separation technologies, relevant developments in intersecting disciplines, and gaps in existing research, and provides recommendations for the application of improved separation science technologies and processes. This research serves as a foundation for transforming separation science, which could reduce global energy use, improve human and environmental health, and advance more efficient practices in various industries.
