Study the table that shows the annual mean temperature of different places in India. Note that the temperature is higher in the southern part of India and lower in the northern part. This is because the southern part of India is closer to the equator and receives more sunlight than the northern part. The temperature is also higher in the coastal areas and lower in the inland areas.

Procedure

On map 1, a temperature interval will be marked. Find a suitable value for the temperature in 10 degree Celsius. Marking all these points along a line from the above value 10 degree Celsius interval marked on the map. The value is 10 degree Celsius interval. You will find the above boundary between 10 and 20 degree Celsius interval. Continue this line until it has given a boundary all the values and all locations that are 10. From this interval there is a small gap. Mark the line where you are sure it is correct.

Draw lines for the 10, 20, 30 and 40 degree intervals. Mark all the above points.

1. In temperature intervals there are several intervals. Can you find the 10 degree interval for the above map?
