

Plans for Reconstruction

After the Civil War, many Americans believed Reconstruction should be a process of difficulty in restoring the South to its former status. A plan for Reconstruction was drafted by a group of influential men. These different proposals were called Reconstruction Plans. The first plan was the Wade-Davis Bill, which called for a Southern state to be readmitted to the Union only if it had a Southern state that was loyal to the Union. The Wade-Davis Bill was rejected by the Senate. The Reconstruction Act of 1867 was passed, which required Southern states to ratify the 14th Amendment, establish a new state constitution, and hold a new election.

The Reconstruction Amendments

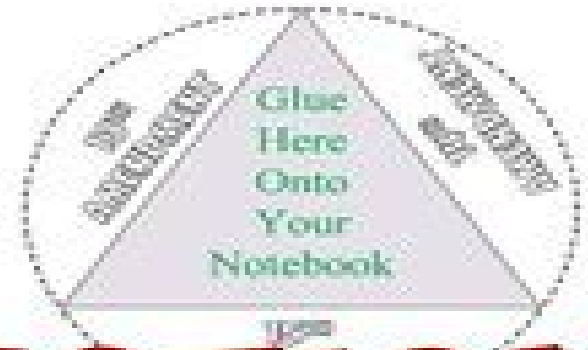

Between 1865 and 1870, three amendments to the Constitution were ratified, which would become known as the Reconstruction Amendments. Numerically, they are the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments, which gave equal rights to the formerly enslaved. The 13th Amendment abolished slavery, the 14th Amendment granted citizenship to all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and the 15th Amendment prohibited the federal government and the states from denying a citizen the right to vote based on race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

The 14th Amendment passed in Congress on January 19, 1868, a few months before President Johnson was impeached. It was not formally ratified until December 6 of that year. The 15th Amendment is considered to be the one which formally ended slavery in the United States.
