The Human Science of Communicology Richard L. Lanigan,1992 Communicology is the study of human discourse in all of its forms ranging from human gesture and speech to art and television Commuicology also represents the dominant qualitative research paradigm in the discipline of human communication especially in the applied areas of mass communication philosophy of communication and speech communication Lanigan's work offers the bold and original thesis that Michel Foucault's thematic study of the discourse of desire and power is an elaboration of the problematic discourse explicated in Maurice Merleau-Ponty's interrogation of freedom and terror. Various chapters cover such topics as art versus science, culture and communication, modernity versus postmodernity, feminism versus humanism, research methodology and the capta versus data distinction for research validity. Actual examples of research cover the aesthetics of painting and sculpture, radio and television, rhetorical criticism of oral and written texts, and the East-West perspective on cross-cultural encounter, all using the approach of semiotic phenomenology. Two special features of this book make it useful for both teacher and scholar alike. First, Lanigan provides an encyclopedic dictionary that illustrates and defines the theory and method of the human sciences in general and the discipline of communicology in particular. Used for several years by teachers in a number of universities, this dictionary had already become a classic among students before its publication here. Second, Lanigan analyzes and illustrates what has been missing for years in the study of Foucault's work: a definition with appropriate illustrative figures and tables of Foucault's method of archaeology and genealogy, criticism for research in the human sciences, especially in the study of human discourse. Beyond the Classics? Sheryl Burkhalter, Frank Reynolds, 1990

Contributors who represent various disciplines apply this philosophy to their respective fields of study. The Johns Hopkins Guide to Literary Theory and Criticism Michael Groden, Martin Kreiswirth, Imre Szeman, 2005 Publisher Description Text John Mowitt, 1992 The concept of textuality in recent decades has come to designate a fundamentally contested terrain within a number of academic disciplines. How it came to occupy this position is the subject of John Mowitt's book, a critical genealogy of the social and intellectual conditions that contributed to the emergence of the textual object. Beginning with the Tel Quel group in France in the sixties and seventies, Mowitt's study details how a certain interdisciplinary crisis prompted academics to rethink the conditions of cultural interpretation. Concentrating on three disciplinary projects: literary analysis, film studies, and musicology, Mowitt shows how textuality's emergence called into question not merely the relations among these disciplines but also the cultural logic of disciplinary reason as such. At once an effort to define the text and to explore and extend the theory of textuality, this book illustrates why the notion of interdisciplinary research has recently acquired such urgency. At the same time, by emphasizing the genealogical dimension of the textual object, Mowitt raises the issues of its antidisciplinary character and, by extension, its immediate pertinence for the current debates over multiculturalism and Eurocentrism. Innovative, historically astute, and theoretically informed, this important book will be indispensable reading for all scholars in literary and cultural studies. The Tradition of Magical Realism and the Achievement of Four Major Latin American Writers Raphael Comprone, 2008 Offers insights into the Latin American literary tradition by analyzing the diverse views of eminent and lesser known writers This study uses critical theory psychoanalysis phenomenology Bakhtin Marx postmodernism and post structuralism that enables scholars to link the study of world literature and contemporary trends in literary theory
