2. Decision Trees

A decision tree is a flowchart representing a hierarchical partitioning of the feature space. The decision tree consists of nodes that store a record of the current state of the decision tree. The nodes are connected by edges. The edges are labeled with the values of the features. The nodes are labeled with the class of the objects that belong to that node. The nodes are labeled with the class of the objects that belong to that node. The nodes are labeled with the class of the objects that belong to that node.
