The Four Dimensions Of Service Management

Achieving value: costs

The ITIL guiding principles

Guiding principle	Description
Focus on value	Everything that the organization does needs to create, directly or indirectly, a benefit to the organization. The focus of value principle encompasses many perspectives, including the experience of customers and users. Do not just focus on specific activities, but also on the overall context in which they are performed. There is a risk that a great idea in the current context becomes a program, project, and people that can be used to create the desired outcome.
Start where you are	The current state should be investigated and assessed, taking into account the fully understood context. Do not attempt to do something at once. Start high, then gradually reduce complexity as you go. By organizing work into smaller, manageable activities that can be completed and completed in a timely manner, you have to monitor a change focus in each effort.
Progress iteratively with feedback	Work in small, frequent, and often visible increments of change that allow you to focus and adapt. Iterate, learn, improve, change. Working together on small, frequent increments results in faster progress, higher team morale, and increased likelihood of long-term success.
Collaborate and promote visibility	Working together across organizational boundaries, and local, global, and cross-functional, creates better outcomes.

Real risks

Achieving desired outcomes requires resources (and therefore costs) and other associated with risk. Service providers help their customers to address outcomes and to design or take on some of the associated risks and costs. On the other hand, service relationships can introduce new risks and costs, and in some cases, can negatively affect some of the intended outcomes after supporting others.

Operational and technical

Operational and technical support of information technology, operational support, products, services, and operations, which should be designed to provide a desired value. If a product, service, solution or solution set to provide value to produce a useful outcome, determine if a process is necessary. Use the minimum number of steps necessary to accomplish the requirements. Always use customer-focused thinking to produce practical solutions that deliver results.
 Realization of all types, particularly info, involves people. Realize that low-effect, knowledge working, that is fully supported and use technology to enhance whatever it is capable of. Human, interaction should only happen when it is necessary to achieve value.

Guerrilla Capacity Planning Neil J. Gunther,2007-01-17 In these days of shortened fiscal horizons and contracted time to market schedules traditional approaches to capacity planning are often seen by management as tending to inflate their production schedules Rather than giving up in the face of this kind of relentless pressure to get things done faster Guerrilla Capacity Planning facilitates rapid forecasting of capacity requirements based on the opportunistic use of whatever performance data and tools are available in such a way that management insight is expanded but their schedules are not A key Guerrilla concept is tactical planning whereby short range planning questions and projects are brought up in team meetings such that management is compelled to know the answer and therefore buys into capacity planning without recognizing it as such Once you have your foot in the door capacity planning methods can be refined in an iterative cycle of improvement called The Wheel of Capacity Planning
