natural selection changes the range of traits in a population - there are 3 ways it can change. Let's look at a multi population that shows

Evolution by natural selection

Describe the theory of natural selection and how the theory was first conceived (thought of).

An English naturalist named Charles Darwin went on a voyage around the world. He noticed that animals in similar environments had similar characteristics. For example, in the Galápagos islands.

Darwin observed similar but non-identical species of finches on each island. He noticed that their beaks seemed to be adapted to their food source. After some time thinking and the work of other scientists, Darwin developed the theory of natural selection.

Individuals with favorable traits survive and reproduce, passing on those traits to their offspring. Over time, the population becomes better adapted to its environment.

Individuals with unfavorable traits do not survive and reproduce, so those traits are not passed on to their offspring. Over time, the population becomes better adapted to its environment.

An example of natural selection!

A population of light brown mice lived on an island of dark rock. They had no black fur.	One day a hawk came to hunt for the common mice on the island.
The mice with black fur are camouflaged against the dark rock where they live.	The light brown mice are more likely to get captured - they are the birds' favorite!
A higher proportion of black mice survived to reproduce, passing on the beneficial trait.	Over time, the population has changed so that most of the mice have black fur.

Stabilizing

Stabilizing selection represents the graph -  $\sigma^2$
