- Must receive a majority of Electoral College votes to win the office
- Shall hold office for a four-year term
- Must be a natural-born citizen of the, 35 years old, and U.S resident 14 years

Being the Chief Legislator

- The President "may recommend [to Congress] such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

- Presidents may ask Congress to pass certain legislatures
- A president with a strong personality can serve as the point person and carry out a vision for the country more easily than all 535 members of Congress

Powers of Persuasion: The President will use bargaining and persuasion in an attempt to get Congress to agree with and pass the legislative agenda

Veto

- The president has the final stamp of approval of congressional bills and also a chance to reject them with the executive veto
- After a bill passes both the House and the Senate, the President has ten days (not including Sundays) to sign it into law
- At times, the President can threaten a veto, exercising an informal power
- When disagreements between the president and his party or the majority of Congress over the details of a new law exist, the president may threaten to veto, conditionally, if the bill is not satisfactory

Line-Item Veto: Empowers an executive to eliminate a line of spending from an appropriations bill or a budgeting measure, allowing the president to veto part, but not all, of the bill
