Properties of Matter

QUESTIONS

Are you able to distinguish, based on the questions in school

- Why are solids, liquids and gasses grouped together?
- Why are substances and mixtures grouped together?

What Are Physical Properties?

Start with the solids in the diagram below as shown in a table to record the changes in their various properties.

If physical properties are characteristics that can be observed without changing the identity of the substance, then the properties of an object can only be observed. For example, you can observe an object's color, shape, size, or weight. However, the properties of an object are determined by the properties of the materials the object is made of.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be observed. These properties include strength, hardness, magnetism, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties than a smaller amount of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small something is, it still has the same property or always the same.

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

Identify the physical and chemical properties of substances and mixtures based on their physical and chemical properties.
