Abstract

The electrocardiogram is a representative signal containing information about the condition of the heart. The shape and size of the P-QRS-T wave, the time intervals between its various peaks, etc. may contain useful information about the nature of disease afflicting the heart. However, these subtle details cannot be directly monitored by the human observer. Besides, since bio-signals are highly subjective, the symptoms may appear at random in the time scale. Therefore, the signal parameters, extracted and analysed using computers, are highly useful in diagnostics. This paper deals with the classification of certain diseases using artificial neural network (ANN) and fuzzy equivalence relations. The heart rate variability is used as the base signal from which certain parameters are extracted and presented to the ANN for classification. The same data is also used for fuzzy equivalence classifier. The feedforward architecture ANN classifier is seen to be correct in about 85% of the test cases, and the fuzzy classifier yields correct classification in over 90% of the cases. © 2002 Pattern Recognition Society. 1. Introduction

Electrocardiography deals with the electrical activity of the heart. Monitored by placing sensors at the limb extremities of the subject, electrocardiogram (ECG) is a record of the origin and propagation of the electric potential through cardiac muscles. It is considered a representative signal of cardiac physiology, useful in diagnosing cardiac disorders.

The state of cardiac health is generally reflected in the shape of ECG waveform and heart rate. It may contain important pointers to the nature of diseases afflicting the heart. However, bio-signals being non-stationary signals, this reflection may occur at random in the time scale. (That is, the disease symptoms may not show up all the time, but would manifest at certain irregular intervals during the day.) Therefore, for effective diagnostics, the study of ECG pattern and heart rate variability signal (instantaneous heart rate against time axis) may have to be carried out over several hours. Thus, the volume of the data being enormous, the study is tedious and time consuming. Naturally, the possibility of the analyst missing (or misreading) vital information is high. Therefore, computer-based analysis and classification of diseases can be very helpful in diagnostics.

The present paper makes use of heart rate variability (HRV) as the base signal for analysis and classification of diseases. The heart rate is evaluated by measuring the time interval between the successive R-peaks (R-R interval) of the ECG waveform. It is known that almost all the useful frequency components in ECG signal falls below 40 Hz [1], and therefore sampled at the rate of 200 samples/s. The heart rate, plotted against the time scale provides the HRV signal,
