

A Case Study on Quality Function Deployment (QFD)

Eshan S. Jaiswal

(Mechanical Department, Mewar University, India)

Abstract: Quality Function Deployment (QFD) was conceived in Japan in the late 1960's, and introduced to America and Europe in 1983. This paper will provide a general overview of the QFD methodology and approach to product development. Once familiarity with the tool is established, a real-life application of the technique will be provided in a case study. The case study will illustrate how QFD was used to develop a new tape product and provide counsel to those that may want to implement the QFD process.

Quality function deployment (QFD) is a "method to transform user demands into design quality, to deploy the functions forming quality, and to deploy methods for achieving the design quality into subsystems and component parts, and ultimately to specific elements of the manufacturing process."

Keywords: Quality Function Deployment, Tape Product, Product Development, Design Quality, Manufacturing

I. Introduction

Quality Function Deployment (QFD) is a quality tool that helps to translate the Voice of the Customer (VoC) into new products that truly satisfy their needs. In this paper, QFD will be reviewed in order to understand how it works, to highlight its strengths and weaknesses and to discuss its practical applications. The first part of the paper will present an overview of QFD and explain the methodology. QFD will be defined and explained by means of an example and a number of benefits and implementation problems will be revealed [1].

First conceptualized in 1966 as a method or concept for new product development under the umbrella of Total Quality Control, Hinshitsu Tenkai (quality deployment) was developed by Dr. Shigeru Mizuno and Yoji Akao. Yoji Akao, et al detailed methods of quality deployment in 1972. The Japan Society of Quality Control formed a research group to specifically study Quality Function Deployment (QFD) in 1978. QFD is used to translate customer requirements to engineering specifications. It is a link between customers - design engineers - competitors - manufacturing. It provides an insight into the whole design and manufacturing operation from concept to manufacture and it can dramatically improve the efficiency as production problems are resolved early in the design phase.

It is very powerful as it incorporates the voice of the customer in the designs - hence it is likely that the final product will be better designed to satisfy the customer's needs. Moreover, it provides an insight into the whole design and manufacturing operation (from concept to manufacture) and it can dramatically improve the efficiency as production problems are resolved early in the design phase.

Quality Function Deployment (QFD) was conceived in Japan in the late 1960' s, and introduced to America and Europe in 1983. During the period between the late 1960's and early 1980's, the concept of QFD was evolved from the belief that Total Quality Control must include not only checking of the control points during production, but an understanding of the requirements prior to the design phase. In the late 1960's, Japanese companies were breaking from their post World War II mode of imitation and copying to a more original mode of product development i. making design quality an important consideration. The need to understand the critical design issues prior to production was acknowledged and QC process charts were widely used to ensure that the design criteria were met during manufacturing, but there was no formal system to translate the customer's needs into the initial design and subsequent process control points. Thus, an opportunity was created for QFD to come to fruition as a method to check the design itself for adequacy in meeting customer requirements and to translate those requirements to production [2].

1.1 When to use QFD:

QFD is applied in the early stages of the design phase so that the customer wants are incorporated into the final product. Furthermore it can be used as a planning tool as it identifies the most important areas in which the effort should focus in relation to our technical capabilities. Ask yourself these questions:

1. Why do QFD in this case?
2. What will the QFD be made of?
3. Is it the right tool at this time?
4. Is this the right place for implementation?
5. What is the goal and what is success?
6. Who all should we involve?

The Customer-driven Company William E. Eureka,Nancy E. Ryan,1994 Quality function deployment QFD is a powerful tool that helps companies identify and meet customer needs and produce quality and cost driven products The authors show why QFD is needed and how it can be incorporated into any company regardless of product line service or business environment This easy to understand revised guide gives readers a complete introduction to QFD and how it can prevent design details from being overlooked in the rush to get products to market Quality Function Deployment ,1988

Quality Function Deployment and Systems Supportability John Longshore,Angela Cheatham,Jim Gibson,2023-11-01 This book not only presents the overall development of quality function deployment QFD and what it has been used for to date but a new product support orientation by which it can be employed It is product and service system focused and presents how blending the processes and elements of supportability and analysis into a QFD modeled methodology can achieve optimal cost savings and performance efficiency and effectiveness In addition a working model is provided that will assist those that elect to use such an approach to current new product and or service development QFD is widely spreading throughout the world because of its outstanding usefulness It is aimed to fulfill the customer s expectation of a product or service design Organizations of all sizes are using it to 1 save product and service design and development time 2 focus on how the product or service might satisfy the customer and 3 improve communication at all levels of an organization during the development process Based on these three reasons today s traditional QFD can be divided into three branches and analyzed First QFD can be implemented effectively for developing new products and designs by establishing the linkage between design stages through the manufacturing environment However research has found that traditional QFD is quite weak in implementing modifications to existing product and service design during its predicted lifecycle Second most research to this point has been squarely focused on the voice of the customer for prioritizing customer needs While certainly needed the voice of the system that is being used to produce the product service and how they operate during its intended life cycle has been given less attention Third QFD is often viewed as overly labor intensive and thus costly and because of its team based development logic manual in nature by those involved during its development and implementation Research has shown that life cycle sustainment planning and support for current or proposed products and or services requires a seamless and balanced life cycle support methodology To achieve this type of support twelve functional elements have been identified that form the product support infrastructure A new approach one that views product support as an integrative activity where all twelve product support elements are assessed over the entire product and or service life cycle is being deployed With this deployment comes a need to ensure Key Performance Parameters KPPs are achieved and functional alignment obtained by balancing supportability element cost and provisioning throughout the entire product and or service lifecycle not just during the development stage and to view the system as the customer and thus listen to the Voice of the System when assessing supportability requirements Quality Function Deployment QFD is such a tool This book contains four sections Section 1 provides an initial overview of QFD origins and history and highlights some of its use today It addresses how QFD fits within the organization increasing revenue and reducing cost It outlines a step by step strategy for successfully deploying QFD within the organization Section 2 examines the evolving product and or service requirement creating the design solution using QFD assessing supportability characteristics using QFD and performing functional supportability analysis using QFD Section 3 provides a guide for developing the life cycle supportability solution using QFD methodology on an ongoing basis and managing processes throughout the systems lifecycle Section 4 addresses using QFD in an imperfect world and will provide insight into how to use QFD beyond the standard house of quality concept
