Radio frequency identification (RFID) is a technology that transmits data using radio waves from an RFID tag attached to an object by the reader for tracking and identifying objects [5]. RFID system contains two main components; the reader and the tags. The tag is normally attached to the objects to be monitored and carries information in a microchip. The reader on the other hand detects tags that are within it frequency range and writes to or read from the tags [2].

1.1. The RFID Tag

The RFID tag is primarily is a kind of a memory device that can transmits its contents when being scanned by the reader. The memory consists of binary digits called the bits, and the transmission and receiving of data has a communication channel. The tag can be an electronic circuit with its own power supply (an active device) or a very low power integrated circuit (passive device) which taps energy from the scanner to transmit its content. In a tag, the transmission power is very low and is measured in millionths of watt i.e. microwatts [1]. Tag can be passive, semi-passive or active. It can also be categorized based on memory type and based on the transmission channel. Passive RFID tags have no internal energy source; energy supplied to the antenna by the incoming radio frequency waves induced enough energy for the CMOS integrated circuit in the tag to get activated and transmits a response. The semi passive tag is similar to passive tag, but has an addition of small power source (battery). This battery
