

Plans for Reconstruction

After the Civil War, many Americans believed that Reconstruction should be a process of difficulty in restoring the South to its former status. A plan for Reconstruction was drafted by a group of influential men. These different proposals were called Reconstruction Plans. The first plan was the Wade-Davis Bill, which called for a Southern state to be readmitted to the Union only if 75% of its white citizens took the oath of allegiance to the United States.

The Reconstruction Amendments

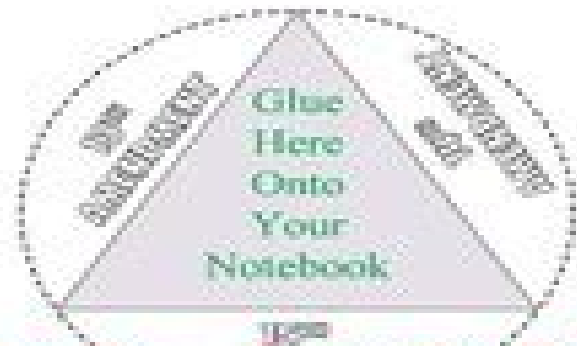

Between 1865 and 1870, three Amendments to the Constitution were ratified, which would become known as the Reconstruction Amendments. Numerically, they are the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments, which gave equal rights to the formerly enslaved men. After the legislation that came after 1865 to reestablish the work of the Radical Republicans, who favored abolition and did not seek compromise or ending slavery. Despite Congressional support, there were many Southerners who were not in favor of these amendments, and they worked to increase the resistance that had begun against the Civil War.

The 13th Amendment passed in Congress on January 31, 1865, a few months before President Lincoln was assassinated. It was not formally ratified until December 6 of that year. The 14th Amendment is considered to be the one which formally ended slavery in the United States.
