Semiotics of Films

Objectives: The objective of this chapter is to familiarize the students with the grammar of films and to enable them to read the signs and codes of films.

Keywords: sign, codes, semiotics, connotation, denotation

What is semiotics?

The word 'semiotic' is derived from 'semeion', the Greek word for sign. The modern disciplines of semiotics are invented by Charles Sanders Peirce (1839-1914) and Ferdinand de Saussure (1857-1913), later published as Course in General Linguistics (1906-1911). Essentially, semiotics is the study of signs. Filmmaking is choosing the precise images for the particular story, and every picture tells a story. It is noteworthy what can be read from a single image. For Peirce, there were multiple types of sign, and three main types are worth discussion. The icon, or a sign which is similar to what it signifies, the index, which is affected by what it represents, and the symbol, a sign that is connected to what it signifies by a law or convention.

How does a film use signs?

Film is the art of visual abbreviation. Cinema is synesthetic as it arouses senses. Roland Barthes, the French semiotician, states in Mythologies, "trivial aspects of everyday life can be filled with meaning", and this includes even a character's hairstyle.

The basic tenet of semiotics is that a sign has two parts: the physical, or the sign-as-object and the psychological, or the sign as concept. Filmmakers show and we understand visual signs such as smiles, scars, guns, badges, hairstyle etc. At this point, an important term you should be familiar with is synecdoche, that is, relationship of a part to a whole (the crown represents the king or the queen, the Oval office stands for the President, the badge symbolizes law and order). It is the little things that fill our everyday lives with meaning, and the same holds true for films. Consider Javier Bardem's hairstyle in No Country for Old Men (2007). Does it say anything about his character? Film images are signs, look at any film poster and you will notice how posters and publicity materials send signals that tell you about the genre of the film.

A key field of study in semiotics relates to the text (literature, film, or even a piece of music). Films construct meaning through signs. Sign has two parts: Signifier/signified. Signifier is the physical part, or the tangible thing we see/hear. It is what we perceive. Signified is the psychological part, the reaction to the object, the

The Social Semiotics of Mass Communication Klaus Bruhn Jensen, 1995-07-11 This text offers a framework for understanding the key role of the mass media in the social production of meaning. It draws on classic positions on the relations between communications and society and on recent work in both social sciences and humanities. Aspects of Film and Television Communication Pieter Jacobus Fourie, Lucas M. Oosthuizen, 1989

From Plato to Lumière André Gaudreault, 2009 With this lucid translation of Du littéraire au filmique André Gaudreault's highly influential and original study of film narratology is now accessible to English language audiences for the first time. Building a theory of narrative on sources as diverse as Plato, The Arabian Nights and Proust, From Plato to Lumière challenges narratological orthodoxy by positing that all forms of narrative are mediated by an underlying narrator who exists between the author and narrative text. Offering illuminating insights, definitions and formal distinctions, Gaudreault examines the practices of novelists, playwrights and filmmakers and applies his theory to the early cinema of the Lumière brothers and more recent films. He also enhances our understanding of how narrative develops visually without language monstration by detailing how the evolution of the medium influenced narratives in cinema. From Plato to Lumière includes a translation of Paul Ricoeur's preface to the French language edition as well as a new preface by Tom Gunning. It is a must read for cinema and media students and scholars and an essential text on the study of narrative.

Tuning in Ronald Wayne Rodman, 2010 Television has been called the boob tube, goof box and even a vast wasteland of American culture. Yet for all its banality, television is in many ways a mirror of culture and communicates messages within culture through the multiple channels of visual images, language, sound and music. All of these channels contain their own unique coded messages to create the larger meaningful text of television. As one of these sensory channels, music contributes to meaning in television through its artistic language and through television viewers' association of music with certain aspects of culture. Music has always been an integral part of the American television, even from its earliest days. Like its parent medium of radio, television broadcasts music to entertain viewers with live and video taped performances, but music has also come to play a much larger role in television beyond its pleasurable performance aspects. Music is used in narrative programs to evoke moods and identify characters and setting; it is used to sell products through commercial jingles and most importantly, music generally aids broadcast television in navigating through the continuous flow of daily programming. This navigational aspect of television music is a distinctive feature and functions to transport the viewer through three spaces of TV: the flow of the televisual apparatus with commercials, newbreaks and promos; the storyworld of each narrative program; and the representational space between narrative and flow. As Heard on TV is an examination and analysis of music in American television during the first fifty years of its history, the book focuses on how music has functioned to serve as a navigator through the flow of television and contributing to structure narrative programs while also conveying meaning to its viewers by correlating with the images and sounds that it accompanies Drawing from precedents of the cinema and radio the book examines music in a number of classic television genres by positing a theory of functional musical spaces adapted from theories of Charles Morris Umberto Eco John Fiske and others Reading Management and Organization in Film Emma Bell,2008-05-15 Table of Contents List of film plates viii Acknowledgements ix Introduction 1 Reading film studying management 13 The organization of film 41 The invisible enemy 65 Organization man 89 Deconstructing the worker 115 Representing the other 139 The search for meaning 161 Spectres of organization 185 Filmography 204 Bibliography 208 Index 225 Film Criticism ,1990 Abstraction in Avant-garde Films Maureen Cheryn Turim,1985 Communication Research Trends ,2005 The Translator ,2003 Great Films and how to Teach Them William V.
