

A Christmas Carol

Stave II

The First Question (first six paragraphs of this chapter)

Scrooge awakens with the city clock striking twelve and the streets are dark. He knows he went to bed after 2 am. Put a check mark by any of the explanations below that occurred to him.

- Did he sleep from 2 am to midnight the next night?
- Is it noon and the sun has failed to shine?
- Was the appearance of Marley just a dream?
- Did a ghost change the time on his clock?

What the Dickens does this mean?

This quote about Scrooge's relief when he realized a full day had NOT gone by still has people perplexed:

This was a great relief, because "three days after sign of this First of Exchange pay to Mr. Ebenezer Scrooge or his orders," and so forth, would have become a mere United States security if there were no days to count by.

BILL OF EXCHANGE for £2000	December 22, 1842
Three Days After Sight of this First of Exchange pay to the order of Mr. Ebenezer Scrooge or his order
the sum of two thousand British pounds
BANK OF LONDON HEIGHTS	Charles Dickens

A Bill of Exchange is somewhat like a check used in international trade. Exchanges could be made several times, and each time it was exchanged it decreased in value. Looking at the handwritten bill above for £2000 (we really don't know how much it was for) we see that it specified it must be cashed in "three days after first sight" or it would become a second exchange. How much less would the second exchange be worth? Well, using his usual British humor he stated it would be "a mere United States security" - indicating he didn't think the bonds put out by the American government were worth much. (There was a financial crisis in America at the time.) The real take away message of this statement is that even when Scrooge is worried about the possibility the sun may have quit shining, Scrooge is still:

- a. Thinking about money
- b. Thinking about America
- c. Counting the days until his next trip
