Published

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and candidates, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Markers were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at a Markers' meeting before marking began, which would have considered the acceptability of alternative answers.

Mark schemes should be read in conjunction with the question paper and the End of Series Report. Cambridge will not enter into discussions about these mark schemes.

The Formation of Coalitions in the European Union Maren Kreutler, 2015-03-26 This book investigates why European associations form interest coalitions which strategies these coalitions pursue to influence the EU institutions and how persistent they are over time In this context questions concerning the transparency of European decision making are approached The field of European energy policy serves as empirical background providing a valuable insight into a little researched area of European politics

Gender, Sexuality, and Material Objects in English Renaissance Verse Pamela S. Hammons, 2016-12-05 An important contribution to recent critical discussions about gender sexuality and material culture in Renaissance England this study analyzes female and male authored lyrics to illuminate how gender and sexuality inflected sixteenth and seventeenth century poets conceptualization of relations among people and things human and non human subjects and objects Pamela S Hammons examines lyrics from both manuscript and print collections including the verse of authors ranging from Robert Herrick John Donne and Ben Jonson to Margaret Cavendish Lucy Hutchinson and Aemilia Lanyer and situates them in relation to legal theories autobiographies biographies plays and epics Her approach fills a crucial gap in the conversation which has focused upon drama and male authored works by foregrounding the significance of the lyric and women s writing Hammons exposes the poetic strategies sixteenth and seventeenth century English women used to assert themselves as subjects of property and economic agents in relation to material items ranging from personal property to real estate despite the dominant patriarchal ideology insisting they were ideally temporary passive vehicles for men s wealth The study details how women imagined their multiple complex interactions with the material world the author shows that how a woman poet represents herself in relation to material objects is a flexible fiction she can mobilize for diverse purposes Because this book analyzes men s and women s poems together it isolates important gendered differences in how the poets envision human subjects use control possession and ownership of things and the influences effects and power of things over humans It also adds to the increasing evidence for the pervasiveness of patriarchal anxieties associated with female economic agency in a culture in which women were often treated as objects

The Rise of International Parliaments Frank Schimmelfennig, Thomas Winzen, Tobias Lenz, Jofre Rocabert, Lorian Crasnic, Cristina Gherasimov, Jana Lipps, Densua Mumford, 2020-12-14 International parliaments are on the rise An increasing number of international organizations establishes international parliamentary institutions or IPIs which bring together members of national parliaments or in rare cases elected representatives of member state citizens Yet IPIs have generally remained powerless institutions with at best a consultative role in the decision making process of international organizations Why do the member states of international organizations create IPIs but do not vest them with relevant institutional powers This study argues that neither the functional benefits of delegation nor the internalization of democratic norms answer this question convincingly Rather IPIs are best understood as an instrument of strategic legitimation By establishing institutions that mimic national parliaments governments seek to ensure that audiences at home and in the wider international environment recognize their international organizations as democratically legitimate At the same time they seek to avoid being effectively constrained by IPIs in international governance The Rise of International Parliaments provides a systematic study of the establishment and empowerment of IPIs based on a novel dataset In a statistical analysis covering the world s most relevant international organizations and a series of case studies from all major world regions we find two varieties of international parliamentarization International organizations with general purpose and high authority create and empower IPIs to legitimate their region building projects domestically Alternatively the establishment of IPIs is induced by the international diffusion of democratic norms and prominent templates above all that of the European Parliament Transformations in Governance is a major academic book series from Oxford University Press It is designed to accommodate the impressive growth of research in comparative politics international relations public policy federalism and environmental and urban studies concerned with the dispersion of authority from central states to supranational institutions subnational governments and public private networks It brings together work that advances our understanding of the organization causes and consequences of multilevel and complex governance The series is selective containing annually a small number of books of exceptionally high quality by leading and emerging scholars The series is edited by Liesbet Hooghe and Gary Marks of the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill and Walter Mattli of the University of Oxford Justice and Vulnerability in Europe Trudie Knijn,Dorota Lepianka,2020-11-27 Justice and Vulnerability in Europe contributes to the understanding of justice in Europe from both a theoretical and empirical perspective It shows that Europe is falling short of its ideals and justice related ambitions by repeatedly failing its most vulnerable populations Water, Knowledge and the Environment in Asia Ravi Baghel,Lea Stepan,Joseph K.W. Hill,2017-03-31 The dramatic transformation of our planet by human actions has been heralded as the coming of the new epoch of the Anthropocene Human relations with water raise some of the most urgent questions in this regard The starting point of this book is that these changes should not be seen as the result of monolithic actions of an undifferentiated humanity but as emerging from diverse ways of relating to water in a variety of settings and knowledge systems With its large population and rapid demographic and socioeconomic change Asia provides an ideal context for examining how varied forms of knowledge pertaining to water encounter and intermingle with one another While it is difficult to carry out comprehensive research on water knowledge in Asia due to its linguistic political and cultural fragmentation the topic nevertheless has relevance across boundaries By using a carefully chosen selection of case studies in a variety of locations and across diverse disciplines the book demonstrates commonalities and differences in everyday water practices around Asia while challenging both romantic presumptions and Eurocentrism Examples presented include class differences in water use in the megacity of Delhi India the impact of radiation on water practices in Fukushima Japan the role of the King in hydraulic practices in Thailand and ritual irrigation in Bali Indonesia Taiwanese Business or Chinese Security Asset Chun-Yi Lee, 2011-10-20 This book investigates how China has used Taiwanese investment and treated Taiwanese investors to pursue political reunification. The book's main supposition is that both Chinese central and local governments have strategic considerations with respect to Taiwanese businesses. Consequently through detailed case studies of three cities Tianjin Kunshan and Dongguan the author explores the changing interaction between Taiwanese businesses and the Chinese government and seeks to provide an explanation of this changing pattern of interaction in the cross strait political economy. Through her unique empirical research Lee shows how Chinese local governments although being driven by short term goals also contribute to the goal of achieving political reunification and argues that central and local governments complement each other as a consequence. By stressing the importance of long term political goals and the state's policy interests and preferences this research intends to address the various political implications attached to Taiwanese investment in China. This timely and important study presents some of the first systematic empirical research published in English or any other Western language focusing on Taiwan's entrepreneurs taishang on the Chinese mainland. The book will be of interest to students and scholars of Taiwan Studies Chinese Politics Political Economy Chinese Business and economics.

Paving the Way Michael R. Fein, 2008 Tells the surprising story of how road construction helped to pave the way to the modern American state. Shows how the growing transportation needs of a steadily industrializing population changed political order from local to state and ultimately to federal governance.

Conversion of the Military Base to a Campus Case Study Brian Charles Jennett, 2000

Designed Ecologies William S. Saunders, 2013-04-30 Kongjian Yu and his office Turenscape are beyond doubt the foremost landscape architecture practice in China today. The vast scale of China and her apparently boundless growth have enabled Yu to test many ideas that are still largely theories in the Western world. His work increasingly valued and appreciated in Europe and North America has attained an extremely high and elegant level in both conception and execution. Kongjian Yu is known for his ecological stance often against the resistance of local authorities. His guiding design principles are the appreciation of the ordinary and a deep embracing of nature even in its potentially destructive aspects such as floods. Among his most acclaimed projects are Houtan Park for Shanghai Expo the Red Ribbon Park in Qinhuangdao and Shipyard Park in Zhongshan. This book explores Yu's work in 11 essays by noted authors and documents 22 major projects extensively.
