THE CASE OF THE MISSING WIFE a blood spatter investigation activity

GOAL: To use blood spatter patterns analysis to determine the height from which a blood sample was dropped.

BASE: In May, 2007, police received a 911 call from a Travis Paul Lechardt who stated that his wife had been missing for several days, disappearing without a trace. After several days of investigation, police located the Lechardt home looking for any clues that might lead to her whereabouts. Upon searching for several minutes, police noticed that the garage floor had been recently painted and there appeared to be small dark spots in the ceiling and corners of the freshly painted garage floor. Upon closer examination, investigators noticed what appeared to be blood drops leading to a problem with superglue hanging in his garage and the blood stains and spot gun pellets were in attempts to eradicate the superglue.

Unfortunately, DNA was not able to be extracted from the stains since they had been painted, so the police must use blood stain analysis to determine if the blood stains were from spatters that fell from the rafters of his garage or if the stains could have something to do with his wife's disappearance.

Use this evidence to determine the height from which the blood stains fell.
